question they constitute a process of discovery and learning conceptually distinct from but supportive of traditional dialogue based modes of museum education which they supplement rather than supplant

Part III Aspects of Play

5 Embodiment Affordances

The idea of embodiment adopted here recognizes that both mind and body are joined in their interactions with things Investigating works of art thus involves apprehending them physically as well as intellectually in the sense of responding to the ways in which a particular work allows and even solicits the viewer's physical grasp of it

6 Skills Ways in which objects present themselves to us as viewers and what we might do in response as they fit with the bodily skills we have developed over the course of our lives

Such skills might be as simple as getting dressed washing or eating or as specialized as doing one's hair dancing playing an instrument or acting all of which may allow us to grasp and even feel that we inhabit particular works of art

7 Movement Embodied looking is always looking from somewhere

We apprehend objects as we physically move around and in front of them they reveal themselves differently as we approach them from different viewpoints Viewers orient themselves spatially to both the surfaces of objects and to the things and spaces depicted in or suggested by representational works of art

Activity based teaching gets visitors and students to move among the objects away from them close to them and even into them

8 The Senses

Both adult visitors and younger students come to the museum expecting to use their eyes yet visual art appeals to several of the senses at once though rarely to the same degree Sculpture for example almost always appeals to touch whether or not that is actually possible or allowed as well as sight A painting depicting a scene in which people appear to be talking may induce viewers to not only look but also listen to what the figures might be saying

9 Drawing in the Museum

Looking at art with a pencil in hand amplifies viewers' ability to imaginatively touch and feel their way across and around an artwork Contour drawing by its nature requires participants to imagine that they are touching the contours of an object beneath the tips of their pencils Other types of drawing allow viewers to feel their way around objects through observation and movement

10 Emotion

Visitors' emotional responses to art represent a complex process with many components from physiological to cognitive and a particular work of art may elicit a wide range of emotional reactions This chapter describes specific ways in which museum educators can go well beyond merely asking visitors how a work of art makes them feel

11 Empathy and Intersubjectivity

One aspect of viewers' emotional responses to art that is often taken for granted if not neglected altogether the empathetic connections that human beings make to images of other people This chapter advocates an approach that prompts viewers to physically engage with the representations of people they see

12 Mindful Looking

Mindfulness involves awareness and attention both as a conscious practice and as an attitude that gallery teachers can encourage in museum visitors This is not solely a matter of cultivating the mind however it is also a matter of cultivating the body since mindfulness is only possible when mind and body are in a state of harmonious relaxed attentiveness Mindfulness practice in the art museum actively directs the viewer's focus on the object itself and insists on returning to it over and over yet it also balances activity with conscious stillness
