Building Better Universities Strategies Spaces Technologies:

Building Better Universities Jos Boys, 2014-11-13 Building Better Universities provides a wide ranging summary and critical review of the increasing number of groundbreaking initiatives undertaken by universities and colleges around the world. It suggests that we have reached a key moment for the higher education sector in which the services location scale ownership and distinctiveness of education are being altered dramatically whether universities and colleges want it or not. These shifts are affecting traditional assumptions about both the future shape of higher education institutions and the roles of and relationships between learners teachers researchers managers businesses communities and other stakeholders. Building Better Universities aims to bridge the gap between educational ideas about what the university is or should be for and its day to day practices and organisation. It roams across strategic operational and institutional issues space planning and building design and technological change in order to bring together issues that are often dealt with separately. By analysing the many challenges faced by higher education in the contemporary period and exploring the various ways universities and colleges are responding this powerful book aims to support a step change in debates over the future of higher education and to enable senior managers and faculty to develop more strategic and creative ways of enabling effective twenty first century learning in their own institutions.

The Translational Design of Universities, 2019-08-12 Whilst schools are transforming their physical and virtual environments at a relatively glacial pace in most countries across the globe universities are under extreme pressure to adapt to the rapid emergence of the virtual campus. Competition for students by online course providers is resulting in a rapidly emerging understanding of what the nature of the traditional campus will look like in the 21st century. The blended virtual and physical technology enabled hybrid learning environments now integrate the face to face and online virtual experience synchronously and asynchronously Local branch campuses are emerging in city and town centres and international branch campuses are growing at a rapid rate There is increasing pressure at various levels i e the city the urban and the campus to create formal and informal learning spaces as well as re purposing the library and social or third spaces Many new hybrid campus developments are not based on any form of rigorous scholarly evidence The risk is that many of these projects may fail In taking an evidence based approach this book seeks to align with the model of translational research from medical practice using a modified translational design approach The majority of the chapter material comes from the scholarly work of doctoral graduates and their dissertations This book is the second in a series on the evidence based translational design of educational institutions with the first volume focussing on schools This volume on Higher Education covers the city to the classroom and those elements in between It also explores what the future might look like as judgements are made about what works in campus planning and design in our rapidly changing virtual and physical worlds Contributors are Neda Abbasi Ronald Beckers Flavia Curvelo Magdaniel Mollie Dollinger Robert A Ellis Kenn Fisher Barry J Fraser Kobi Jacov Haina Rifca Hashimshony Leah Irving Marian Mahat Saadia Majeed Jacqueline Pizzuti Ashby Leanne Rose Munro Mahmoud Reza Saghafi Panayiotis Skordi Alejandra Torres Landa Lopez and Ji Yu

Reforming Learning and Teaching in Asia-Pacific Universities Chi-hung Clarence Ng, Robert Fox, Michiko Nakano, 2016-05-06 This book focuses on learning and teaching as the core business of higher education and explores reformative efforts in response to the influences of globalised processes in three advanced economies in the Asia Pacific region Japan Hong Kong and Australia This is a significant book as it adds to limited discussions on the globalisation of learning debates and scholarly reflections on the links between globalised processes and changing educational practices critical to understanding the current challenges and options available for charting future development for universities in the Asia Pacific region and beyond It rejects an essentialising perspective that considers changes as inevitable and uniform Instead it considers negotiations arguments and even resistance as competing forces and integral components of the process of reforming pedagogical practices in Asia Pacific universities This book discusses globalised processes as a new context for reforming learning and teaching and its focused discussions cover topics including meeting the needs of new student groups new technological practices for change use of English as an international language and challenges in assessment and quality assurance

Sensory Affect, Learning Spaces, and Design Education Lorraine Marshalsey, 2023-03-10 Through the lens of sensory affect this book offers a new way of thinking about day to day teaching and student engagement within learning spaces in design education The book examines the definitions concepts ideas and overlaps of a repertoire of learning spaces prevalent in higher education and addresses the pedagogical gap that exists between broader learning structures and spaces and the requirements of specialist design education Recognising that mainstream teaching environments impact upon design studio learning and student engagement the book positions creative learning spaces at the heart of practice based learning It defines the underlying pedagogical philosophy of a creative learning space in design education and reports on how practical strategies incorporating sensory affect may be implemented by educators to foster better student engagement in these spaces within higher education Bringing much needed attention to specialist design teaching and learning spaces in higher education this book will be of interest to educators researchers and post graduate students immersed in design education pedagogy and learning spaces more broadly

The Education Ecology of Universities Robert A. Ellis, Peter Goodyear, 2019-03-26 Many universities around the world are finding that the structures and processes they have put in place to further their educational missions are being tested by rapidly changing circumstances These changes involve new pedagogies new course designs new technologies and updating of the physical campus reflecting diversifying student needs growing student numbers increasing competition and more demanding stakeholder expectations The Education Ecology of Universities examines these issues starting with the challenges identified by university leaders who have responsibility for education digital and campus planning Sharing an analysis of in depth interviews with more than 50 leaders it identifies a range of conceptual and procedural gaps that undermine the full development and alignment of education digital and campus strategies The second half of the book provides practical ideas for taking a more holistic indeed ecological approach to understanding and improving university learning environments Setting out a case for a new applied science of educational ecology this book offers foundational concepts and theoretical perspectives introducing methods for analysing and evaluating teaching and learning ecosystems It will be of interest to anyone who wants better ways of understanding how local systems function and can be improved It is a must read text for all leaders and researchers in education and indeed for anyone concerned with the future of higher education

University Trends Jonathan Coulson, Paul Roberts, Isabelle Taylor, 2022-09-28 The campus has a deep rooted prestige as a place of teaching learning and nurturing Conjuring images of cloistered quadrangles of sunny lawns of wood panelled libraries it is a word viscerally charged with centuries of scholarly tradition And yet it is also a place of cutting edge science vibrancy and energy It is this dual nature this concurrent adherence to tradition and innovation which renders the physical environment of the university such a redolent enduring and dynamic realm However it also means that the twenty first century campus is a highly challenging and exacting landscape to design and manage successfully Today the scale of the pressures and the rate of change facing higher education institutions are greater than ever Squeezed public spending growing societal expectations and the broadening education ambitions of developing nations are set against a backdrop of rapid technological progress and changing pedagogies What are the repercussions for the physical realities of university planning and architecture And how are university campuses adapting to contend with these pressures University Trends Contemporary Campus Design introduces the most significant widespread and thought provoking trends that are currently shaping the planning and architecture of higher education institutions across the world Within this completely revised third edition Part One identifies current patterns such as student hubs large scale expansions and buildings for innovation and interdisciplinary research Part Two profiles these through recent well illustrated global case studies This is the essential guide to current and future trends in campus design Place-Based Spaces for Networked Learning Lucila Carvalho,Peter Goodyear,Maarten de Laat,2016-07-01 With the boundaries of place softened and extended by digital communications technologies learning in a networked society necessitates new distributions of activity across time space media and people and this development is no longer exclusive to formally designated spaces such as school classrooms lecture halls or research laboratories Place based Spaces for Networked Learning explores how qualities of physical places make both formal and informal education in a networked society possible Through a series of investigations and case studies it illuminates the structural composition and functioning of complex learning environments This book offers a wealth of key design elements and attributes for productive learning that educational designers can reuse in multiple contexts The chapters examine how places are modified expanded or supplemented by networking technologies and practices in order to create spaces in which learners can collaboratively develop new understandings connections and capabilities Utilizing a range of diverse but complementary perspectives from anthropology archaeology architecture geography psychology sociology and urban studies Place based Spaces for Networked Learning addresses how material places and digital spaces are understood how sense can be made of new assemblages and configurations of tasks tools and people how the real time analysis of new flows of data can inform and entertain users of a space and how access to the digital realm changes our experiences with both places and other people Digital Transformations in Nordic Higher Education Rómulo Pinheiro,Cathrine Edelhard Tømte,Linda Barman,Lise Degn,Lars Geschwind,2023-07-15 This open access book expands the scholarly and policy debates surrounding digital transformation in higher education The authors adopt a pluralistic conceptual framework which uncovers three analytical elements contexts mediations and type of effects for unpacking empirical manifestations The publicly funded higher education systems in Nordic countries provide solid empirical insights into how digital transformations have gained ground before and during the COVID 19 pandemic and chapter contributions demonstrate how international digitalisation trends such as in the global EdTech industry impact on the core activities of higher education institutions HEIs The findings underscore the importance of assessments that consider multiple sub systems within HEIs as well as the complex relationships between them By unpacking Nordic dynamics in the light of global processes and developments the approach adopted and the results generated are of relevance to a much broader global audience of students and researchers in higher education Exploring Informal Learning Space in the University Graham Walton,Graham Matthews,2017-09-01 Growing student numbers increased student expectations new approaches to learning and fast paced technological advances all contribute to the need for universities to take a more strategic approach to their buildings including formal and informal learning spaces Exploring Informal Learning Space in the University addresses the issue of informal learning space from the perspectives of a comprehensive range of stakeholders including students academics facilities managers university managers IT managers architects interior designers and librarians With contributions from a range of experts practitioners and academics around the world this book uses a combination of case studies and theoretical discussion to explore the rationale and theory of informal learning space alongside the practicalities of its planning development and utilization The volume is at once ambitious and pragmatic combining innovative thinking with a firm awareness of practicalities including the varied constraints faced by universities and the need to work in tandem with broader strategies Advocating broad collaboration at both planning and delivery stage the result is essential reading for anyone involved in the delivery of learning space provision from architects and designers to university managers and strategists It will also be of particular interest to academics researchers and postgraduate students engaged in the study of library information science or higher education policy and strategy
