Meditative practices have flourished in widely different parts of Eurasia yet historical research on such practices is limited. Research to date has focused on contexts rather than actual practices and within individual traditions. For the first time in one volume the meditative practices of the three traditions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam are examined. They are viewed in a global perspective considering both generic and historical connections to practices in other traditions, particularly in India and East Asia. Their cultural and historical peculiarities are examined, comparing them both to each other and to Asian forms of meditation. The book builds on a notion of meditation as self-administered techniques for inner transformation, a definition which focuses on transformative practice rather than notions of meditative states and mystical experiences. It proposes ways of studying meditative practice historically and concludes with an essay on the modern scientific interest in meditation. Asian Traditions of Meditation Halvor Eifring, 2018-01-31. Meditation has flourished in different parts of the world ever since the foundations of the great civilizations were laid. It played a vital role in the formation of Asian cultures that trace much of their heritage to ancient India and China. This volume brings together for the first time studies of the major traditions of Asian meditation as well as material on scientific approaches to meditation. It delves deeply into the individual traditions while viewing each of them from a global perspective, examining both historical and generic connections between meditative practices from numerous historical periods and different parts of the Eurasian continent. It seeks to identify the cultural and historical peculiarities of Asian schools of meditation while recognizing basic features of meditative practice across cultures, thereby taking the first step toward a framework for the comparative study of meditation. The book, accessibly written by scholars from several fields, opens with chapters that discuss the definition and classification of meditation. These are followed by contributions on Yoga and Tantra, which are often subsumed under the broad label of Hinduism, Jainism and Sikhism, Indian traditions not usually associated with meditation. Buddhist approaches found in Southeast Asia, Tibet and China, and the indigenous Chinese traditions Daoism and Neo-Confucianism. The final chapter explores recent scientific interest in meditation, which despite its Western orientation remains almost exclusively concerned with practices of Asian origin. Until a few years ago, a major obstacle to the study of specific meditation practices within the traditions explored here was a widespread scholarly orientation that prioritized doctrinal issues and sociocultural contexts over actual practice. The contributors seek to counter this bias and supplement concerns over doctrine and context with the historical study of meditative practice Asian Traditions of Meditation will appeal broadly to readers interested in meditation mindfulness and spirituality and those in the emerging field of contemplative education as well as students and scholars of Asian and religious studies International Meditation Bibliography, 1950-1982 Howard R.
