

Karla Permut

Black Sea, 1999. Oil on canvas, 100 x 150 cm.

The painting depicts a vast, desolate landscape of ice and water. The ice is rendered in various shades of white and blue, with sharp, jagged edges and deep shadows. The water is dark and still, reflecting the pale sky. The overall mood is one of isolation and melancholy.

The painting is a large-scale work, measuring 100 x 150 cm. It is made of oil on canvas. The composition is dominated by the large, white iceberg in the center, which is surrounded by dark water. The sky is a pale, uniform color, adding to the sense of vastness and emptiness.

Caple,Jana Pflaeging,2020-01-03 This innovative collection builds on current multimodal research to showcase image centric practices in contemporary media unpacking the increasing extent to which the visual plays a principal role in modern day communication The volume begins by providing a concise overview of the history and development of multimodal research with respect to image centricity with successive chapters looking at how image centricity emerges over time unfolds in relation to language and other features in global design strategies Bringing together contributions from both established and emerging researchers in multimodality and social semiotics the book presents case studies on a variety of image centric genres and domains including magazines advertising discourse multimedia storytelling and social media platforms The aims of the book are to interrogate the new multimodal genres relations forms of analysis and methods of production that emerge from a greater reliance on visual components Refining and broadening current understandings of image centricity in today s media sphere this collection will be of particular interest to scholars and students in multimodality social semiotics applied linguistics language and media and discourse analysis Dwell ,2008-07 At Dwell we re staging a minor revolution We think that it s possible to live in a house or apartment by a bold modern architect to own furniture and products that are exceptionally well designed and still be a regular human being We think that good design is an integral part of real life And that real life has been conspicuous by its absence in most design and architecture magazines Rethinking Architectural Historiography Dana Arnold,Elvan Altan Ergut,Belgin Turan Ozkaya,2006-09-27 Rather than subscribing to a single position

this collection informs the reader about the current state of the discipline looking at changes across the broad field of methodological theoretical and geographical plurality Divided into three sections Rethinking Architectural Historiography begins by renegotiating foundational and contemporary boundaries of architectural history in relation to other fields such as art history and archaeology It then goes on to critically engage with past and present histories disclosing assumptions biases and absences in architectural historiography It concludes by exploring the possibilities provided by new perspectives

reframing the discipline in the light of new parameters and problematics This timely and illustrated title reflects upon the current changes in historiographical practice exploring potential openings that may contribute further transformation of the disciplines and theories on architectural historiography and addresses the current question of the disciplinary particularity of architectural history
