S For Young Adults:

Researching Young People's Lives Sue Heath, Rachel Brooks, Elizabeth Cleaver, Eleanor Ireland, 2009-03-19

Researching young people's lives will be useful to both the novice researcher and anyone interested in learning about new methods of practice. Youth Studies Australia Researching Young People's Lives provides an overview of some of the key methodological challenges facing youth researchers and an introduction to the broad repertoire of methods used in youth orientated research. The book is split into two sections. In the first half of the book the authors consider the broad methodological and contextual concerns of relevance to the design and conduct of youth research including ethical issues, the importance of context and the rise of participatory approaches to youth research. The second part of the book focuses on the use of specific research methods in the conduct of youth research ranging from surveys and secondary analysis through to interviewing, ethnography, visual methods and the use of the internet in youth research. Throughout the book the emphasis is on research in practice and examples are drawn from recent youth research projects from a wide range of disciplines and substantive areas and from a range of both UK and non UK contexts. This is an ideal introduction to the field for novice researchers in particular students studying and researching in the broad area of youth studies. It should also appeal to practitioners engaged in evaluation of service provision to young people and to established youth researchers who might wish to explore the potential of using a different set of methods to those with which they are already familiar. Young Adult Development at the School-to-Work Transition E. Anne Marshall, Jennifer E. Symonds, 2021-01-18 The school to work transition is a critical part of the human life span for young adults, their families and society. The timing of the transition varies greatly and its co-occurrence with a number of other life transitions make it challenging to summarize or generalize. Individual differences and normative developmental factors as well as external contextual factors such as global pandemics, changing economic circumstances, workplace demands and cultural shifts intersect to create a range of challenges and opportunities for those navigating this transition. Written by internationally renowned scholars in developmental psychology, applied psychology, counseling and sociology, the chapters in this book highlight the trends, issues and actions that researchers, academics, practitioners and policy makers need to consider in order to effectively support young adults' transition to work pathways. This volume provides an explicitly international perspective on this area, broad coverage of psychological topics on the school to work transition and an inclusive focus on sub groups and minority groups, making it a must read for those who support young adults as they move from school to work. Young People, Alcohol, and Risk Amy

Pennay, Gabriel Caluzzi, Laura Fenton, John Holmes, Michael Livingston, Jonas Raninen, Jukka Törrönen, 2025-04-29 Young People, Alcohol and Risk theorises the social, cultural and economic shifts that have underpinned significant declines in young people's drinking in high income countries. Since the early 2000s, alcohol use among young people has declined significantly in most high income countries. Situated within a theoretical framework of social generations and risk, this book explores the key interrelated factors that have cumulatively shifted the social and cultural position of alcohol for young people in these countries Drawing on interviews and survey data from the authors research in Australia Sweden and the UK as well as the broader international literature the book explores the importance of changes in attitudes to alcohol shifting family and parenting practices digital technology use and changes in leisure practices neoliberalism and individualism health and wellbeing and gendered practices These factors have made salient the notion of risk for young people resulting in a culture of caution This book will be of interest to students and scholars across the social sciences in particular those studying substance use youth sociology cultural studies and public health It will be of use to policy makers and practitioners working with young people

Taste and Healthy Eating in the Context of Well-being, Sustainability and 21st Century Food Science

Hisayuki Uneyama, Ken Iwatsuki, Nobuyuki Sakai, Keiko Yasumatsu, 2025-04-24 In the Anthropocene the global food system affects the geosystem and its biosphere and thus it is important for us to reconsider our eating styles and develop new and sustainable food systems This is particularly crucial since we are facing the risk of morbidity and mortality result from unhealthy diets In 2019 the EAT Lancet commission offered a new food standard that gratifies both health and environmental sustainability calling it the planetary health diet It is necessary for us to understand the sensory characteristics of the planetary health diet and how we humans select consume and develop foods and beverages to satisfy the standards of this new dietary approach These understandings add more fuel to promote the achievements of Sustainable Development Goals and of the planetary health diet This Research Topic aims to reveal the neural and biological mechanisms underlying the perception and selection of the planetary health diet Currently we have only little knowledge about taste and flavor perception so we do not know what sensory characteristics of foods are liked Also we do not know the mechanisms involved in selecting certain foods For example we know that excessive salt intake induces hypertension and or obesity but often we do not select low salt foods even when suffering from the high blood pressure We also know that animal models e g mice rats consume more of diets that impart a good taste for them As humans however we do not always eat so much of foods that may taste good for us and may consume foods or beverages that are not so enjoyable for us Thus a multidisciplinary approach is needed to challenge these topics
