A Rumor Of War By Philip Caputo A Critical Essay:

War, Literature, and the Arts, 1992 Critical Theology against US Militarism in Asia Nami Kim, Wonhee Anne Joh, 2016-12-24 Drawing on cultural studies scholar Kuan Hsing Chen's threefold notion of decolonization, deimperialization, and de-cold war, this book provides analyses of the interrelated issues concerning the relationship between Christianity and the United States imperialist militarism in the Asia Pacific. Contributors explore the effects of US imperialist militarism on the formation of Asian and Asian American collective subjectivity and inter-intra subjectivity. The book investigates the ways in which Christianity, broadly defined in its own complexity, has been complicit in maintaining and reinforcing US imperialist military agendas in both national and international contexts. Conversely, the volume also discusses the various sites and instances where Christianity has managed to serve as a force of resistance against US imperialist militarism. Narratives of the Vietnam War by Korean and American Writers Jinim Park, 2007 Original Scholarly Monograph Virginia Woolf: Critical responses to the short stories, sketches and essays, feminist treatises and biographies Eleanor Jane McNeese, 1994 Soldiers Once and Still Alex Vernon, 2007-08-15 As the world enters a new century as it embarks on new wars and sees new developments in the waging of war, reconsiderations of the last century's legacy of warfare are necessary to our understanding of the current world order. In Soldiers Once and Still, Alex Vernon looks back through the twentieth century in order to confront issues of self and community in veterans' literature, exploring how war and the military have shaped the identities of Ernest Hemingway, James Salter, and Tim O'Brien, three of the twentieth century's most respected authors. Vernon specifically explores the various ways war and the military, through both cultural and personal experience, have affected social and gender identities and dynamics in each author's work. Hemingway, Salter, and O'Brien form the core of Soldiers Once and Still because each represents a different warring generation of twentieth-century America: World War I with Hemingway, World War II and Korea with Salter, and Vietnam with O'Brien. Each author also represents a different literary voice of the twentieth century, from modern to mid-century to postmodern, and each presents a different battlefield experience: Hemingway as noncombatant, Salter as air force fighter pilot, and O'Brien as army grunt. War's pervasive influence on the individual means that for veterans-turned-writers like Hemingway, Salter, and O'Brien, the war experience infiltrates their entire body of writing; their works can be seen not only as war literature but also as veterans' literature. As such, their entire postwar oeuvre, regardless of whether an individual work explicitly addresses the war or the military, is open to Vernon's exploration of war, society, gender, and literary history. Vernon's own experiences as a soldier, a veteran, a writer, and a critic inform this enlightening critique of American literature, offering students and scholars of American literature and war studies an invaluable tool for understanding war's effects on the veteran writer and his society. The War on Terror and American Popular Culture Andrew Schopp, Matthew B. Literatures of War Eve Patten, Richard Pine, 2020-11-09 The most terrible disaster that one group of human beings can inflict on another is war Wars cause misery on an indescribable scale Yet we go on doing it to one another generation after generation Why Warfare is a recurrent and universal characteristic of human existence The mythologies of practically all peoples abound in wars and the superhuman deeds of warriors and pre-literate communities apparently delighted in the recital of stories about battles Since our species became literate a mere 5 000 years ago written history has mostly been the history of wars Thousands who knew war evidently sickened of it and dreamt of lasting peace expressing their vision in literature and art in philosophy and religion They imagined Utopias freed of martial ambition and bloodshed which harked back to the Golden Age of classical antiquity to the Christian vision of a paradise lost and to the Arcadia of Greek and Latin poetry so richly celebrated in the canvases of Claude and Poussin All these things bear eloquent testimony to the human longing for peace but they have not triumphed over our dreadfully powerful propensity to war from the Introduction by Anthony Stevens In this multi-disciplinary collection of essays on the manifestations of war in poetry fiction drama music and documentaries scholars and practitioners from an international context describe the transformation of the war experience into chronicles of hope and despair from Herodotus up to the present day
