analyzes math education policy through the social network of individuals and private and public organizations that influence it in the United States The effort to standardize a national mathematics curriculum for public schools in the U S culminated in 2010 when over 40 states adopted the Common Core State Standards for Mathematics Rather than looking at the text of specific policy documents this book complements existing critical reviews of the national math education curriculum by employing a unique social network analysis Breaking new ground in detailing and theorizing the politics of math education Wolfmeyer argues that the private interests of this network are closely tied to a web of interrelated developments human capital education policy debates over traditional and reform pedagogy the assumed content knowledge deficit of math teachers and the proliferation of profit driven educational businesses By establishing the interconnectedness of these interests with the national math education curriculum he shows how the purported goals of math education reform are aligned with the prevailing political agendas of this social network rather than the national interest Traditional Math: An effective strategy that teachers feel guilty using Barry Garelick, J. R. Wilson, 2022-11-04 Despite experiencing our teaching in different times we are both oriented to traditional math teaching It wasn't because we were both taught that way as some may believe but because that method worked for us and we have seen it work for our students It is efficient effective non confusing and helped our students develop mathematical reasoning understanding and confidence Most importantly it helped them to be successful So begins the book on traditional math which provides a glimpse of what explicit instruction looks like in the classroom for grades K through 8 Barry Garelick and J R Wilson are retired math teachers who describe the methods of traditionally taught math that they used in their teaching Their descriptions serve two purposes 1 It provides assurance to teachers who may already practice these methods that they are not alone and 2 For others it may provide some new ideas
