ice age around 9600 BCE G bekli Tepe in southeast Turkey was designed to align with the constellation of the celestial swan Cygnus a fact confirmed by the discovery at the site of a tiny bone plaque carved with the three key stars of Cygnus Remarkably the three main pyramids at Giza in Egypt including the Great Pyramid align with the same three stars But where did this ancient veneration of Cygnus come from Showing that Cygnus was once seen as a portal to the sky world Andrew Collins reveals how at both sites the attention toward this star group is linked with sound acoustics and the use of musical intervals discovered thousands of years later by the Greek mathematician Pythagoras Collins traces these ideas as well as early advances in human technology and cosmology back to the Altai Baikal region of Russian Siberia where the cult of the swan flourished as much as 20 000 years ago He shows how these concepts including a complex numeric system based on long term eclipse cycles are derived from an extinct human population known as the Denisovans Not only were they of exceptional size the ancient giants of myth but archaeological discoveries show that this previously unrecognized human population achieved an advanced level of culture including the use of high speed drilling techniques and the creation of musical instruments The author explains how the stars of Cygnus coincided with the turning point of the heavens at the moment the Denisovan legacy was handed to the first human societies in southern Siberia 45 000 years ago catalyzing beliefs in swan ancestry and an understanding of Cygnus as the source of cosmic creation It also led to powerful ideas involving the Milky Way s Dark Rift viewed as the Path of Souls and the sky road shamans travel to reach the sky world He explores how their sound technology and ancient cosmologies were carried into the West flowering first at G bekli Tepe and then later in Egypt s Nile Valley Collins shows how the ancient belief in Cygnus as the source of creation can also be found in many other cultures around the world further confirming the role played by the Denisovan legacy in the genesis of human civilization might be the motivation behind this movement It is hoped that the materials in this volume in addition to providing a representative sampling of the current reinterpretation of Ch in Shih huang may also be helpful in formulating answers to the above and more questions Science and Civilisation in China, Part 13, Mining Peter J. Golas, 1999-02-25 The fifth volume of Dr Needham s immense undertaking covers the subjects of chemistry and chemical technology This the thirteenth part of the volume is the first history of Chinese mining to appear in a western language Covering from the Neolithic period to the present day it deals with the full range of Chinese mining from copper to mercury arsenic to coal and a large number of other minerals and materials The author draws extensively not only on written sources but also on archaeological remains and observation of traditional techniques still in use The interrelationship between Chinese mining and the social economic and political conditions in which it took place is examined and leads the author to conclude that these extraneous factors were probably more important in determining how mining was carried out than technological progress
