BA · RA · KEI—Ordeal by Roses is the fierce and lyrical testament of the legendary Japanese writer Yukio Mishima. His elaborate and erotic psyche is captured by the master Japanese photographer Eikoh Hosoe.

This BA · KEI is an extraordinary collaboration between two great creative personalities of modern Japan.

Its visceral climax is a prophecy of the writer's shocking ritual suicide which stunned the world in 1970—now the subject of Paul Schrader's eagerly awaited and controversial film produced by Francis Ford Coppola.

Ba Ra Kei Ordeal By Roses:

Ordeal by Roses Eikō Hosoe, 1985 The Spirit of Venice is a history of the first great economic and naval power of the modern Western world from its struggle to ascendancy through the arc of its glory when its trading empire reached as far afield as China Syria and West Africa to the beginning of its long and fascinating decline Told through the lives of the brilliant and often wayward individuals who are inextricably bound to the Republic this is the story of the Venice of Marco Polo Titian Tintoretto Leonardo da Vinci Galileo Casanova and a scintillating array of equally captivating heroes and villains It reveals a vibrant city of invention which pioneered banking presided over the first bond market crash and whose renowned Arsenal became the world's first assembly line And while Venice had no Statue of Liberty or mother of parliaments it was for many years the nearest the modern western world came to a liberal democracy Gloriously rich with detail and intrigue The Spirit of Venice constitutes a refreshing and authoritative new way into the history of the most evocative of cities BA RA KEI Eikoh Hosoe, 1985

Experimental Arts in Postwar Japan Miryam Sas, 2020-03-17 In the years of rapid economic growth following the protest movements of the 1960s, artists and intellectuals in Japan searched for a means of direct impact on the whirlwind of historical and cultural transformations of their time. Yet while the artists often called for such direct encounter, their works complicate this ideal with practices of interruption, self-reflexive mimesis, and temporal discontinuity. In an era known for idealism and activism, some of the most cherished ideals—intimacy between subjects, authenticity, a sense of home—are limitlessly desired yet always just out of reach. In this book, Miryam Sas explores the theoretical and cultural implications of experimental arts in a range of media. Casting light on important moments in the arts from the 1960s to the early 1980s, this study focuses first on underground post-shingeki theater and then on related works of experimental film and video, buto dance, and photography. Emphasizing the complex and sophisticated theoretical grounding of these artists through their works, practices, and writings, this book also locates Japanese experimental arts in an extensive sustained dialogue with key issues of contemporary critical theory.

Faceless Bogomir Doring, Brigitte Felderer, 2018-06-11 The contributions to this book explore a phenomenon that appears to be a contradiction in itself: we, the users of computers, can be tracked in digital space for all eternity. Although on the one hand one wants to be noticed and noticeable, on the other hand one does not necessarily want to be recognized at the first instance, being prey to an unfathomable public or even less so to lose face. The book documents artistic and other strategies that point out options for appearing in the infinite book of faces whilst nevertheless avoiding being included in any records. The desire not to become a mere object of facial sell-out does not just remain an aesthetic endeavor. The contributions also contain combative and sarcastic statements against a digital dynamic that has already penetrated our everyday lives.
