Harrell, 2000 Military manpower policy is often crafted by policymakers without an in depth understanding of the life experiences and views of junior enlisted personnel It is plausible to expect that some policymakers attribute the attitudes and experiences of these young soldiers to such features as youth or lack of an advanced education and may thus believe themselves able to empathize with this population group by recalling their own parallel life experiences However this approach oversimplifies the life experiences of these families and neglects the reality that most policymakers and professional managers have never experienced the compendium of problems these couples face such as youth lack of education financial difficulties emotional and physical distance from extended family and invisibility in a large bureaucracy At the center of this book are the personal stories of three junior enlisted spouses told in their own voices and selected to emphasize the dilemmas numerous enlisted families
