two basal closely related facets the subject's feverish desire to archive and the archive's self-destructive tendencies which may also surface in an ambivalent melancholic relishing in the archived object's presence within its absence Through this new theoretical perspective details and coherence previously gone unnoticed shall be laid bare ultimately contributing to a new and more profound understanding of British Romanticism's It will be shown that the various discursive and material manifestations of archives and archival practices not only echo the period's technological cultural and historical developments along with its incisive experiencing of loss but also fundamentally determine Romantic subjectivity and aesthetics
