STEERING SYSTEM

The steering system is designed to provide directional control of the tractor. It consists of a steering wheel, steering column, steering knuckles, and steering arms. The steering wheel is connected to the steering column by a steering shaft. The steering column is connected to the steering knuckles by steering arms. The steering knuckles are connected to the wheels by steering knuckle pins. The steering system is designed to provide a steering ratio of 1:1. This means that for every degree the steering wheel is turned, the wheels are turned one degree.
