Industrial Hygiene Control of Airborne Chemical Hazards William Popenorf, 2006-05-15 Do you need guidelines for choosing a substitute organic solvent that is safer to use Do you need an effective cheap but perhaps temporary way to reduce exposures before you can convince your employer to spend money on a long term or more reliable solution Do you need information about local exhaust ventilation or personal protective equipment like respirators and gloves Industrial

Hygiene Control of Airborne Chemical Hazards provides the answers to these questions and more Science based and quantitative the book introduces methods for controlling exposures in diverse settings focusing squarely on airborne chemical hazards It bridges the gap between existing knowledge of physical principles and their modern application with a wealth of recommendations techniques and tools accumulated by generations of IH practitioners to control chemical hazards Provides a unique comprehensive tool for facing the challenges of controlling chemical hazards in the workplace Although William Popenorf has written the book at a fundamental level he assumes the reader has some experience in science and math as well as in manufacturing or other work settings with chemical hazards but is inexperienced in the selection design implementation or management of chemical exposure control systems Where the book is quantitative of course there are lots of formulae but in general the author avoids vague notation and long derivations Handbook of Ventilation for Contaminant Control Henry J. McDermott,1976 1995 ASHRAE Handbook American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers,1995 Navy Lifeline ,1982 Loss Prevention ,1973 American National Standard - Fundamentals Governing the Design and Operation of Local Exhaust Ventilation Systems American National Standards Institute,2001 ANSI/AIHA Z9.2-2006 Fundamentals Governing the Design and Operation of Local Exhaust Ventilation Systems Aiha,2007 This new standard describes fundamental good practices related to the commissioning design selection installation operation maintenance and testing of local exhaust ventilation LEV systems used for the control of employee exposure to airborne contaminants

The book delves into Acgih Iv Manual For Exhauststack Design Criteria.
