Kim, Franklin Vernon, Matthew Wolfgram, 2020-09-03 This book examines the true costs of attendance faced by low and moderate income students on four public college campuses and the consequences of these costs on students academic pathways and their social financial health and emotional well being The authors exploration of the true costs of academics living expenses and student services leads them to conclude that current college policies and practices do not support low income and otherwise marginalized students well being or success To counter this they suggest that reform efforts should begin by asking value based questions about the goals of public higher education and end by crafting class responsive policies They propose three tools that policymakers can use to do this work and steps that every person can take to revitalize public support for public education equity producing policies and democratic participation in the public arena

Consumer Optimization Problem Solving Alfred L Norman, 2014-12-15 What algorithms are tractable depends on the speed of the processor Given the speed of digital computers polynomial algorithms are considered tractable But a human can take several seconds to make one binary comparison between two pens Given this slow speed sublinear algorithms are considered tractable for an unaided human and this defines Simon's concept of bounded rationality Humans make simplifications to solve the intractable consumer optimization problem Consumers search for goods and services item by item which greatly reduces the number of alternatives to consider In addition consumers have operators that can process a set in a single operation Also consumers budget by incremental adjustment In considering consumer performance the question to ask is how close to optimal is consumer performance and not whether consumers optimize as a yes no question Given the ordinal nature of utility theory this creates a basic measurement problem The book presents a review of the literature on consumer performance This is an opportune time to study consumer procedures because the Internet provides a media to make substantial improvements in consumer performance The book includes a case study comparing the performance of a digital camera selection code with the advice of sales people A field experiment demonstrates that the software code provides better advice
