Take a closer look at the images above. Each is home to a variety of plants and animals, but no two are the same. Although they're all capable to life, there are quite a lot of differences too. Many of these differences are abiotic, or have to do with the non-living parts of the environment. Abiotic factors include temperature, the amount of oxygen in the air or water, and the kind of soil present.

extremely nutrient rich soil. Here you'll find a variety of plants and animals. Due to their dry and hot climate, plants in both savanna and grasslands are adapted to survive relatively common fires.

Desert

When we think of deserts, we usually think of a hot and dry place, but did you know that deserts can be cold too? The Great Salt Lake in Utah is the largest desert in the world. It's cold there, but there is so much salt (and) that it's still considered a desert. Both plants and animals must adapt to dry life in the desert. Many develop unique ways of surviving such as water storage or the ability to remain dormant (similar to hibernation) for a long time.

Forest

There are several different kinds of forest biomes, including: The rainforest is most likely the most famous forest. This lush forest is home to a vast number of plants and animals. It's so lush that it's hard to find in this abundant ecosystem. Here you can find parrots, sloths, and many more.

The temperate forest is common in the US, Canada, Europe, and Asia. Here you'll find deciduous trees that lose their leaves in the winter. In fact, that's what this biome is famous for. It's a unique biome. The coniferous forest is found in the mountains and the winters are cold. In these forests you'll find bears, deer, and many more. The boreal is a cold forest with cone-bearing, coniferous trees. It's found in Northern Canada and Russia. The days are long in the summer and short in the winter due to the tilt of the Earth's axis, so the trees are evergreen.

Earth is an amazing planet. It has many different environments that make perfect homes for millions of species. The largest major habitats that exist worldwide are known as biomes. Most likely, you're familiar with many of these: desert, rainforest, grassland, etc. Each biome is unique and has its own set of characteristics that make it different. The combination of all habitats is what makes our Earth so abundant in biodiversity.

Grassland biomes live up to their name! They're made up of open and very few trees. The two major grassland biomes are the savanna and temperate grassland. The savanna is a biome that covers much of Africa and large parts of Australia. These areas have a 6-8 month wet season in the summer and a dry season in the winter.
