Biotic Factors In A Desert:

Survival Strategies of Annual Desert Plants Yitzchak Gutterman, 2012-12-06 Annual desert plant species of unrelated taxa in the Negev Desert of Israel have developed complementary sets of adaptations and survival strategies as ecological equivalents with physiological morphological and anatomical resemblances in the various stages of their life cycles After 40 years of research in hot deserts Yitzchak Gutterman provides a comprehensive treatise of such adaptations and strategies In doing so he covers the following topics post maturation primary seed dormancy which prevents germination of maturing seeds before the summer seed dispersal mechanisms with escape or protection strategies cautious or opportunistic germination strategies seedling drought tolerance The day length is an important factor in regulating flowering as well as the phenotypic plasticity of seed germination which is also affected by maternal factors

Energetics of Desert Invertebrates Harold Heatwole, 2012-12-06 Desert invertebrates live in an environment where resources alternate unpredictably between brief periods of plenty and prolonged scarcity This book describes the adaptive strategies of desert invertebrates in acquiring energy and sustaining life under such vicissitudes Some cooperate in foraging others compete for resources Some are nomadic and migrate to more favorable sites as conditions change Others conserve energy by going into a deep dormancy until better conditions return Still others store food during plenty and retreat underground during less favorable times The adaptive modes of husbanding scarce energy resources are diverse and lead to an appreciation of the intricate interactions of animals living near their environmental limits

The Ecology of Desert Communities Gary A.
