Race in the Making Lawrence A. Hirschfeld, 1996 Race in the Making provides a new understanding of how people conceptualize social categories and shows why this knowledge is so readily recruited to create and maintain systems of unequal power Hirschfeld argues that knowledge of race is not derived from observations of physical difference nor does it develop in the same way as knowledge of other social categories. Instead his central claim is that racial thinking is the product of a special purpose cognitive competence for understanding and representing human kinds. The book also challenges the conventional wisdom that race is purely a social construction by demonstrating that a common set of abstract principles underlies all systems of racial thinking whatever other historical and cultural specificities may be associated with them. Starting from the commonplace observation that race is a category of both power and the mind, Race in the Making directly tackles this issue. Through a sustained exploration of continuity and change in the child's notion of race and across historical variations in the race concept, Hirschfeld shows that a singular commonsense theory about human kinds constrains the way racial thinking changes whether in historical time or during childhood. After surveying the literature on the development of a cultural psychology of race, Hirschfeld presents original studies that examine children's and occasionally adults' representations of race. He sketches how a jointly cultural and psychological approach to race might proceed, showing how this approach yields new insights into the emergence and elaboration of racial thinking.

Learnability and Cognition, new edition Steven Pinker, 2013-05-24. A classic book about language acquisition and conceptual structure with a new preface by the author. The Secret Life of Verbs. Before Steven Pinker wrote bestsellers on language and human nature, he wrote several technical monographs on language acquisition that have become classics in cognitive science. Learnability and Cognition, first published in 1989, brought together two big topics: how do children learn their mother tongue and how does the mind represent basic categories of meaning such as space, time, causality, agency, and goals. The stage for this synthesis was set by the fact that when children learn a language they come to make surprisingly subtle distinctions: pour water into the glass and fill the glass with water sound natural but pour the glass with water and fill water into the glass sound odd. How can this happen given that children are not reliably corrected for uttering odd sentences and they don't just parrot back the correct ones they hear from their parents? Pinker resolves this paradox with a theory of how children acquire the meaning and uses of verbs and explores that theory's implications for language, thought, and the relationship between them. As Pinker writes in a new preface to The Secret Life of Verbs, the phenomena and ideas he explored in this book inspired his 2007 bestseller The Stuff of Thought: Language as a Window into Human Nature. These technical discussions, he notes, provide insight not just into language acquisition but into literary metaphor, scientific understanding, political discourse, and even the conceptions of sexuality that go into obscenity.

Language Creation and Language Change Michel DeGraff, 1999. Research on creolization, language change, and language acquisition has been converging toward a triangulation of the constraints along which grammatical systems develop within individual speakers and viewed externally across generations of speakers. The originality of this volume is in its comparison of various sorts of language development from a number of linguistic, theoretic, and empirical perspectives using data from both speech and gestural modalities and from a diversity of acquisition environments. In turn, this comparison yields fresh insights on the mental bases of language creation. The book is organized into five parts creolization and acquisition acquisition under exceptional circumstances language processing and syntactic change parameter setting in acquisition and through creolization and language change and a concluding part integrating the contributors observations and proposals into a series of commentaries on the state of the art in our understanding of language development its role in creolization and diachrony and implications for linguistic theory Contributors Dany Adone Derek Bickerton Adrienne Bruyn Marie Coppola Michel DeGraff Viviane D prez Alison Henry Judy Kegl David Lightfoot John S Lumsden Salikoko S Mufwene Pieter Muysken Elissa L Newport Luigi Rizzi Ian Roberts Ann Senghas Rex A Sprouse Denise Tangney Anne Vainikka Barbara S Vance Maaïke Verrips Systems that Learn Sanjay Jain,1999 This introduction to the concepts and techniques of formal learning theory is based on a number theoretical approach to learning and uses the tools of recursive function theory to understand how learners come to an accurate view of reality Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1992 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70

Mindblindness Simon Baron-Cohen,1997-01-22 In Mindblindness Simon Baron Cohen presents a model of the evolution and development of mindreading He argues that we mindread all the time effortlessly automatically and mostly unconsciously It is the natural way in which we interpret predict and participate in social behavior and communication We ascribe mental states to people states such as thoughts desires knowledge and intentions Building on many years of research Baron Cohen concludes that children with autism suffer from mindblindness as a result of a selective impairment in mindreading For these children the world is essentially devoid of mental things Baron Cohen develops a theory that draws on data from comparative psychology from developmental and from neuropsychology He argues that specific neurocognitive mechanisms have evolved that allow us to mindread to make sense of actions to interpret gazes as meaningful and to decode the language of the eyes A Bradford Book
