Denton, Sal

Restivo, 2008-10-30 The modern world is filled with debate and controversy and science and technology the most characteristic features of the modern world are not immune Science and technology are implicated in many if not all of the issues troubles and problems students are likely to come across in their classes and in their everyday lives Science and technology serve as a primary pathway to understanding front page headlines on everything from war to AIDS and from oil exploration to global warming Battleground Science and Technology examines the most hot button issues involving science and technology and provides a balanced assessment of the arguments on all sides of the often strident debates The approximately 100 issues examined in Battleground Science and Technology include topics in the brain sciences including the controversies over the cause of autism and the reliability of memory as well as the debates over parapsychology debates surrounding information technology such as only privacy the impact of video games on social behavior and the advent of virtual reality the complexity over drugs and medications such as the testing of the efficacy of medications the war on recreational drugs and the costs of pharmaceutical research and hot button topics that are constantly in the news such as evolution and creationism DNA testing stem cell research and genetically modified organisms Each entry provides a list of accessible resources useful for further research

The Educated Eye Nancy A. Anderson, 2012 The creation and processing of visual representations in the life sciences is a critical but often overlooked aspect of scientific pedagogy The Educated Eye follows the nineteenth century embrace of the visible in new spectatoria or demonstration halls through the twentieth century cinematic explorations of microscopic realms and simulations of surgery in virtual reality With essays on Doc Edgerton's stroboscopic techniques that froze time and Eames's visualization of scale in Powers of Ten among others contributors ask how we are taught to see the unseen

Waking the Power Within Thermodynamics and the Human Battery Professor Ibrahim El-Noshokaty, The sci-fi film The Matrix introduces a fascinating premise where humans function as energy sources for an advanced machine society In this fictional world human bodies are maintained in a state of suspended animation while their minds exist in a virtual reality allowing machines to extract their bioelectric thermal and kinetic energy This article investigates the scientific feasibility of utilizing humans as a power source by applying thermodynamic principles According to the first law of thermodynamics the energy required to sustain human life would result in a net energy loss for the machines The second law indicates that the system's entropy would rise rendering it an inefficient energy strategy Furthermore the energy output of a human body even if fully utilized would be inadequate to meet the machines energy demands More efficient alternatives for the machines would include other biological power sources and energy harvesting techniques such as solar or nuclear power The article concludes that while the concept of human batteries serves as an engaging storytelling element it is not a scientifically viable solution for the machines energy requirements The machines choice to preserve human life may be motivated by other factors such as leveraging their collective cognitive abilities for computational purposes or adhering to an ethical code that prohibits the complete annihilation of humanity This investigation aims to fill the gap by providing a detailed thermodynamic analysis of the energy expenditure required to sustain human life in a suspended animation state and the inefficiency of this system as an energy source for machines a facet previously unexplored By elucidating the thermodynamic constraints of human based energy sources this study not only challenges a popular sci-fi narrative but also enriches our understanding of bioenergetic processes and their implications for future energy harvesting technologies
