The pH Scale

"Acids are added to the solution to decrease the pH." "Bases are added to the solution to increase the pH." "The pH scale ranges from 0 to 14. 0 is the most acidic and 14 is the most basic. 7 is neutral." "The pH scale is a logarithmic scale. Each unit change represents a tenfold change in acidity or basicity."

Enzymes (proteins) are catalysts

"Enzymes are proteins that act as biological catalysts. They speed up chemical reactions without being consumed in the process. Enzymes are highly specific, meaning they only catalyze one type of reaction. The active site of an enzyme is the region where the substrate binds and the reaction occurs. The shape of the active site is complementary to the shape of the substrate, allowing for a precise fit. This is often described as a 'lock and key' model. Enzymes are essential for life, as they allow chemical reactions to occur at a rate that is compatible with life. Without enzymes, many of the reactions that are necessary for life would be too slow to sustain life."
