Abstract. We provide a tutorial on answer set programming, a modern approach towards true declarative programming. We first introduce the required theoretical background in a compact, yet sufficient way and continue to elaborate problem encodings for some well known problems. We do so by also introducing the tools gringo and clasp, a sophisticated state-of-the-art grounder and solver, respectively. In that way we cover theoretical as well as practical aspects of answer set programming, such that the interested reader will gather sufficient knowledge and experience in order to continue discovering the field of answer set programming.

1 Introduction

Answer set programming (ASP) is a modern approach to declarative programming, where a user focusses on declaratively specifying his or her problem. ASP has its roots in deductive databases, logic programming, logic based knowledge representation and reasoning, constraint solving, and satisfiability testing. It can be applied in a uniform way to search problems in the classes P , NP , and NP^{NP} as they occur in application domains like planning, configuration, code optimization, database integration, decision support, model checking, robotics, system syntheses, and many more. We assume the reader to be familiar with propositional and first-order logic as well as with logic programming [5,13,3].

2 The Interview Example

A college in the USA uses the following rules for awarding scholarships to students: (1) Every student with a GPA of at least 3.8 is eligible. (2) Every minority student with a GPA of at least 3.6 is eligible. (3) No student with a GPA under 3.6 is eligible. (4) The students whose eligibility is not determined by these rules are interviewed by the scholarship committee.

These rules can be encoded in the following program:

$$\begin{aligned} \text{eligible}(X) &\leftarrow \text{highGPA}(X) \\ \text{eligible}(X) &\leftarrow \text{minority}(X) \wedge \text{fairGPA}(X) \\ \neg \text{eligible}(X) &\leftarrow \neg \text{fairGPA}(X) \\ \text{interview}(X) &\leftarrow \sim \text{eligible}(X) \wedge \sim \neg \text{eligible}(X) \end{aligned} \tag{1}$$
