A New Approach To Teaching And Learning Anatomy Objectives And Learning Activities:

A New Approach to Teaching and Learning Anatomy Michael J. Blunt, 2014-05-19 A New Approach to Teaching and Learning Anatomy Objectives and Learning Activities presents sets of general instructional and specific behavioral objectives to define the framework of a course in human anatomy. The objectives are preceded by explanatory notes which deal with the principles and the techniques involved in their formulation so that their expansion or modification may be facilitated. Methods of using the objectives as guides to study are also suggested. This book is comprised of 13 chapters and begins with an introduction to the goals to be adopted for the course framework and the general objectives that will indicate course content as well as the sequence of learning. The discussion then turns to specific behavioral objectives and student centered learning activities followed by an outline of the anatomy course. The course is broken down into regions and systems and covers the anatomy of bones joints and muscles along with peripheral nerves and vessels. The anatomy of the upper limb head and neck walls of thorax and abdomen and the lower limb are considered. The viscera are fitted in to the musculo skeletal framework on a systematic basis and the course outline concludes with a section on neurological anatomy that is the cardiovascular system respiratory system gastrointestinal system genito urinary system and neuroendocrine system. This monograph should be useful to those who are engaged in teaching learning programs in anatomy whether as medical educators or as students.

A New Approach to Teaching and Learning Anatomy Activities Michael John Blunt, 1976 Multiple Choice Questions in Anatomy and Neurobiology for Undergraduates Michael J. Blunt, M. Girgis, 2013-10-22 Multiple Choice Questions in Anatomy and Neurobiology for Undergraduates is a collection of multiple choice questions in anatomy and neurobiology for undergraduate students. Questions are grouped for each visceral system and the nervous system. In the case of the body framework including peripheral nerves and blood vessels however a regional grouping is used. Each question has the corresponding correct answer. This book is comprised of eight chapters covering the upper limb head and neck musculoskeletal trunk lower limb cardiovascular and respiratory systems gastrointestinal and genito urinary systems and neurobiology. Each chapter contains three types of questions designed to test knowledge in different ways. Type A items involve choosing a single correct answer from five available choices. Type L items are used to elicit information on the cause effect relationship between sets of data. Type E items call for the perception of one or more correct responses among four alternatives and the responses may be grouped in five different ways. Most questions are also accompanied by an indication of the percentage of students who obtained the correct answer on occasions of previous settings and by a biserial correlation coefficient r biserial indicative of the capacity of the question to distinguish between more able and less able students. This monograph is primarily intended for medical undergraduates and will also be useful to academic anatomists building up their own question banks.

Biomedicine Examined M. Lock, D. Gordon, 2012-12-06 The culture of contemporary medicine is the object of investigation in this book. The meanings and values implicit in biomedical knowledge and practice and the social processes through which they are produced are examined through the use of specific case studies The essays provide examples of how various facets of 20th century medicine including education research the creation of medical knowledge the development and application of technology and day to day medical practice are pervaded by a value system characteristic of an industrial capitalistic view of the world in which the idea that science represents an objective and value free body of knowledge is dominant The authors of the essays are sociologists and anthropologists in almost equal numbers also included are papers by a social historian and by three physicians all of whom have steeped themselves in the social sciences and humanities This cooperative endeavor which has necessitated the breaking down of disciplinary barriers to some extent is perhaps indicative of a larger movement in the social sciences one in which there is a searching for a middle ground between grand theory and attempts at universal explanations on the one hand and the context specific empiricism and relativistic accounts characteristic of many historical and anthropological analyses on the other
