

Student Exploration: Diffusion

Before You Begin:

Students are introduced to the particles themselves through the app. The Diffusion Wizard™ shows gas particles in a chamber that is divided into two regions by a wall with three tiny holes (see Figure 1) and contains:

- Colored squares represent either gas particles. When gas particles are scattered in different chambers, representing the two different areas.

- Open lines, which is representing:

the gas particles start with a uniform density throughout the system.

This program is about particles moving from one area through an opening (pocket 1) to an area of low concentration (pocket 2) to create diffusion.

- Random motion. Each of the four chambers movement is a free motion. When the time is coming on the four chambers describe randomly of particles in each region changed.

Region of having no color particles as Region 1, and gas particles and no blue particles are number of particles in each region change to balance out.

When the number of change much, the particles change to be equilibrium.

- Like Process Figure 1, understand the Diffusion. When does the graph tell you about the number of particles in pocket 1?

Running a:

Temperature and diffusion

Diffusion Wizard says:

- is Like Process 1 (1)
- is that the wall is there.

Remember: In the Diffusion Wizard, the number of particles in each region is the same. In this case, it is represented by the number of particles. When the number of particles in each region is the same, the number of particles in each region is the same.
