Algerian Diary Frank Kearns And The Impossible Assignment For Cbs News:

Algerian Diary Gerald Davis (Filmmaker), 2016 Frank Kearns was the go to guy at CBS News for dangerous stories in Africa and the Middle East in the 1950s 60s and early 70s By his own account he was nearly killed 114 times He took stories that nobody else wanted to cover and was challenged to get them on the air when nobody cared about this part of the world But his stories were warning shots for conflicts that play out in the headlines today In 1957 Senator John Kennedy described America's view of the Algerian war for independence as the Eisenhower Administration's head in the sand policy So CBS News decided to find out what was really happening there and to determine where Algeria's war for independence fit into the game plan for the Cold War They sent Frank Kearns to find out Kearns took with him cameraman Yousef Joe Masraff and 400 pounds of gear some of which they shed and they hiked with FLN escorts from Tunisia across a wide no man's land and into the Aures Mountains of eastern Algeria where the war was bloodiest They carried no passports or visas They dressed as Algerians They refused to bear weapons And they knew that if captured they would be executed and left in unmarked graves But their job as journalists was to seek the truth whatever it might turn out to be This is Frank Kearns's diary
