Beyond Consensus Improving Collaborative Planning And Management:

Beyond Consensus Richard D. Margerum, 2011-08-19 This volume provides an examination of how to move from consensus to implementation using collaborative approaches to natural resource management urban planning and environmental policy

Beyond Consensus Richard D. Margerum, 2011-08-19 An examination of how to move from consensus to implementation using collaborative approaches to natural resource management urban planning and environmental policy Collaborative approaches are increasingly common across a range of governance and policy areas Single issue single organization solutions often prove ineffective for complex contentious and diffuse problems Collaborative efforts allow cross jurisdictional governance and policy involving groups that may operate on different decision making levels In Beyond Consensus Richard Margerum examines the full range of collaborative enterprises in natural resource management urban planning and environmental policy He explains the pros and cons of collaborative approaches develops methods to test their effectiveness and identifies ways to improve their implementation and results Drawing on extensive case studies of collaborations in the United States and Australia Margerum shows that collaboration is not just about developing a strategy but also about creating and sustaining arrangements that can support collaborative implementation Margerum outlines a typology of collaborative efforts and a typology of networks to support implementation He uses these typologies to explain the factors that are likely to make collaborations successful and examines the implications for participants The rich case studies in Beyond Consensus which range from watershed management to transportation planning and include both successes and failures offer lessons in collaboration that make the book ideal for classroom use It is also designed to help practitioners evaluate and improve collaborative efforts at any phase The book's theoretical framework provides scholars with a means to assess the effectiveness of collaborations and explain their ability to achieve results

Conflict and Collaboration Catherine Gerard, Louis Kriesberg, 2018-05-11 In this volume scholars from different disciplines join together to examine the overlapping domains of conflict and collaboration studies It examines the relationships between ideas and practices in the fields of conflict resolution and collaboration from multiple disciplinary perspectives The central theme is that conflict and collaboration can be good bad or even benign depending on a number of factors These include the role of power design of the process itself skill level and intent of the actors social contexts and world views The book demonstrates that various blends of conflict and collaboration can be more or less constructively effective It discusses specific cases analytical methods and interventions and emphasizes both developing propositions and reflecting on specific cases and contexts The book concludes with specific policy recommendations for many sets of actors those in peacebuilding social movements governments and communities plus students of conflict studies This book will be of much interest to students scholars and practitioners of peace and conflict studies public administration sociology and political science Making Space for the River Jeroen Frank Warner, Arwin van Buuren, Jurian Edelenbos, 2012-11-01 This book examines recent developments in river flood management from the viewpoint of Making Space for the River and the resulting challenges for water governance. Different examples from Europe and the United States of America are discussed that aim to green rivers including increasing river discharge for flood management enhancing natural and landscape values promoting local or regional economic development and urban regeneration. Making Space for the River presents not only opportunities and synergies but also risks as it crosses established institutional boundaries and touches on multiple stakeholder interests which can easily clash. Making Space for the River helps the reader to understand the policy and governance dynamics that lead to these tensions and pays attention to a variety of attempts to organize effective and legitimate governance approaches. The book helps to realize connections between policy domains, problem frames and goals of different actors at different levels that contribute to decisive and legitimate action. Making Space for the River has an international comparative character that sheds light upon both the country specific governance dilemmas which relate to specific state traditions and institutional characteristics of national water management but also uncovers interesting similarities which provide us with building blocks to formulate more generic lessons about the governance of Making Space for the River in different institutional and social contexts. The authors of this book come from a variety of disciplines including public administration, town and country planning, geography and anthropology and these different disciplines bring multiple ways of knowing and understanding of Making Space for the River programs. The book combines interdisciplinary scientific analyses of Space for the River projects and programs with practical knowing and lessons drawing. Making Space for the River is written for both practitioners and scholars and students of environmental policy, spatial planning, land use and water management. Editors: Jeroen Warner, Assistant Professor of Disaster Studies, Wageningen University, The Netherlands; Arwin van Buuren, Associate Professor of Public Administration, Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands; Jurian Edelenbos, Professor of Public Administration, Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands.

Examining the Socio-Technical Impact of Smart Cities Annansingh, Fenio, 2021-03-18 Smart city development and governance is a technological issue and a complex mechanism of the political understanding of technology, environmental interest and urban interactions in terms of both economic gains and other public values. A smart city is defined by the technology it possesses and how it integrates and uses that technology to improve operational efficiency, propel citizen engagement and justify inward migration. Understanding the principles and policies at work creates a full understanding of smart cities. Examining the Socio-Technical Impact of Smart Cities is an essential publication that enhances our theoretical understanding of the socio-technical impact of smart cities by promoting the conceptual interactions between social and governmental structures, people, task structure with new technologies. Highlighting a wide range of topics including community inclusion, cultural innovation and public safety, this book is ideally designed for urban planners, entrepreneurs, engineers, government officials, policymakers.

academicians researchers and students Adapting Infrastructure to Climate Change Todd Schenk, 2017-08-15 Many of the challenges that decision makers grapple with in relation to climate change are governance related Planning and decision making is evolving in ambiguous institutional environments in which many key issues remain unresolved including relationships between different actors funding arrangements and the sources and procedures for vetting data These issues are particularly acute at this juncture as climate adaptation moves from broad planning processes to the management of infrastructure systems Concrete decisions must be made Adapting Infrastructure to Climate Change draws on case studies of three coastal cities situated within very different governance regimes neo corporatist Rotterdam neo pluralist Boston and semi authoritarian Singapore The book examines how infrastructure managers and other stakeholders grappling with complex and uncertain climate risks are likely to make project level decisions in practice and how more effective decision making can be supported The differences across governance regimes are currently unaccounted for in adaptation planning but are crucial as best practices are devised These lessons are also applicable to infrastructure planning and decision making in other contexts This book will be of great interest to scholars of climate change and environmental policy and governance particularly in the context of infrastructure management The Human Dimensions of Forest and Tree Health Julie Urquhart, Mariella Marzano, Clive Potter, 2018-05-24 This book explores the specifically human dimensions of the problem posed by a new generation of invasive pests and pathogens to tree health worldwide The growth in global trade and transportation in recent decades along with climate change is allowing invasive pests and pathogens to establish in new environments with profound consequences for the ecosystem services provided by trees and forests and impacts on human wellbeing The central theme of the book is to consider the role that social science can play in better understanding the social economic and environmental impacts of such tree disease and pest outbreaks Contributions include explorations of how pest outbreaks are socially constructed drawing on the historical cultural social and situated contexts of outbreaks the governance and economics of tree health for informing policy and decision making stakeholder engagement and communication tools along with more philosophical approaches that draw on environmental ethics to consider non human perspectives Taken together the book makes theoretical methodological and applied contributions to our understanding of this important subject area and encourages researchers from across the social sciences and humanities to bring their own disciplinary perspectives and expertise to address the complexity that is the human dimensions of forest and tree health Chapters 5 and 11 are open access under a CC BY 4.0 license via link.springer.com Making Collaboratives Work Susan Meyers Chandler, 2018-10-26 Most contemporary public managers will work in some type of collaborative or networked arrangement at some time in their professional careers More and more work in public administration and policy is now being done in collaborative formats and while there are many studies articles and cases describing successful endeavors a good deal of confusion persists about what exactly makes them work What are the best practices This book focuses on the processes protocols and incentives needed for successful collaborative endeavors Moving beyond new public governance theories and the limits of new public management Chandler uniquely focuses on the facilitative skills and tools that members and facilitators need for success in collaborative work Written by an author with both academic and practical experience in organizing developing leading and facilitating public private collaboratives this book has both an academic thrust and an action focus drawing on case studies from the fields of health and human services to highlight important theoretical and or practice points Making Collaboratives Work is required reading for undergraduate and graduate public administration students of collaborative management nonprofit administration organizational theory and practice communications public policy and leadership The book is also ideally suited to public administrators and nonprofit managers asked to work in public private partnerships and collaboratives to solve complex problems

Capacity-Building and the Water-Energy-Food Nexus
Maureen Papas, 2023-12-22 This book critically explores how the water energy food nexus can be used as an organising framework to address environmental degradation and promote sustainable development Building effective and sustainable mechanisms to tackle environmental problems requires in depth understanding of relationships between natural resources going beyond conventional policy and siloed decision making The water energy food nexus has been promoted as a conceptual framework and management tool to facilitate integrated planning and practical linkages to support sustainable development The author opens this book with an overview of capacity building and reviews the significance of the water energy food nexus bringing in links to the 2030 Agenda Climate change is highlighted as a key consideration in any conversation about natural resource use and case studies from Japan India and China are utilised to show that whilst long term sustainable development practices are being implemented the environmental challenges across the region raise concerns about institutional capacity economic sustainability and future of the region Finally through the lens of capacity building the book suggests that whilst the water energy food nexus may provide a new approach to sustainable development it will not be enough to achieve long term sustainability or extend to the lives of those most affected This section is unchanged This book will be of interest to students scholars and practitioners working in the water energy agriculture sectors and keen to adopt a transdisciplinary approach to public policy comparative politics and international relations It will also be a valuable resource to those working in governmental organisations and NGOs involved in capacity building and development
