A NEW AGE OF EXPLORATION

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

Ever since the first expedition to the continent of Antarctica in 1771, the continent has been a source of fascination and mystery. It is the only continent that has never been visited by a human being. It is the only continent that has never been explored. It is the only continent that has never been mapped. It is the only continent that has never been named. It is the only continent that has never been discovered. It is the only continent that has never been found. It is the only continent that has never been seen. It is the only continent that has never been touched. It is the only continent that has never been felt. It is the only continent that has never been heard. It is the only continent that has never been smelled. It is the only continent that has never been tasted. It is the only continent that has never been lived on. It is the only continent that has never been loved. It is the only continent that has never been hated. It is the only continent that has never been feared. It is the only continent that has never been worshipped. It is the only continent that has never been despised. It is the only continent that has never been ignored. It is the only continent that has never been forgotten. It is the only continent that has never been remembered. It is the only continent that has never been missed. It is the only continent that has never been wanted. It is the only continent that has never been needed. It is the only continent that has never been used. It is the only continent that has never been abused. It is the only continent that has never been neglected. It is the only continent that has never been abandoned. It is the only continent that has never been left behind. It is the only continent that has never been left alone. It is the only continent that has never been left to die. It is the only continent that has never been left to rot. It is the only continent that has never been left to decay. It is the only continent that has never been left to burn. It is the only continent that has never been left to freeze. It is the only continent that has never been left to melt. It is the only continent that has never been left to evaporate. It is the only continent that has never been left to condense. It is the only continent that has never been left to precipitate. It is the only continent that has never been left to fall. It is the only continent that has never been left to rise. It is the only continent that has never been left to sink. It is the only continent that has never been left to float. It is the only continent that has never been left to drift. It is the only continent that has never been left to wander. It is the only continent that has never been left to roam. It is the only continent that has never been left to stray. It is the only continent that has never been left to wander. It is the only continent that has never been left to roam. It is the only continent that has never been left to stray.
