Monuments of Diverse Heritage in Early America Barry L. Stiefel, 2025-10-01 Monuments of Diverse Heritage in Early America Placemaking and Preservation by Black Indigenous and Jewish Peoples explores a more inclusive history of preserving public historic sites At a time when some Americans have embraced white nationalism in response to unfolding demographic changes and others celebrate individual identities over all else an inclusive tolerant and unifying historical vision is sorely needed While past preservation efforts sometimes resulted in exclusionary forms of historical inspiration that need not be the case in the future Bringing greater attention to the diverse heritage of the United States will not only help dismantle the lingering remnants of exclusionary and elitist narratives but also celebrate a pluralistic and diverse past and present An inclusive empowering history can provide social cohesion while allowing room for individual groups to have authority over their pasts and representation in public side by side with one another New Life for Historically Black Colleges and Universities Vann R. Newkirk, 2014-01-10 In December 2008 Georgia state senator Seth Harp ignited controversy when he proposed merging two historically Black colleges with nearby predominantly white colleges to save money Less than a year later Mississippi governor Haley Barbour sought to unite Mississippi's three predominantly Black colleges These efforts kindled renewed interest in historically Black colleges and universities HBCUs across the nation and the globe In this study HBCU officials and faculty attempt to identify the challenges that HBCUs face explore the historic origin of HBCU management systems and identify models of success that will improve the long term viability of the HBCU By analyzing HBCUs within a larger framework of American higher education and the cultural context in which HBCUs operate these essays introduce a new paradigm in the quest to ensure that HBCUs continue to play an important role in the education of Americans of all races Necessary Spaces Saundra Murray Nettles, 2013-08-01 In Necessary Spaces Exploring the Richness of African American Childhood in the South Saundra Murray Nettles takes the reader on a journey into neighborhood networks of learning at different times and places Using autobiographical accounts Nettles discusses the informal instructional practices of community coaches from the perspective of African American adults who look back on their childhood learning experiences in homes libraries city blocks schools churches places of business and nature These eyewitness accounts reveal necessary spaces the metaphor Nettles uses to describe seven recurring experiences that converge with contemporary notions of optimal black child development connection exploration design empowerment resistance renewal and practice Nettles weaves the personal stories with social scientific theory and research and practical accounts of community based initiatives to illuminate how local communities contributed human built and natural resources to support children s achievement in schools The inquiry offers a timely and accessible perspective on how community involvement for children can be developed utilizing the grassroots efforts of parents children and other neighborhood residents expertise from personnel in schools informal institutions such as libraries and museums and other sectors interested in disparities in education health and the quality of physical settings Grounded in the environmental memories of African American childhood Necessary Spaces offers a culturally relevant view of civic participation and sustainable community development at the local level Educational researchers and policy makers pre service and in service teachers and people who plan for and work with children and youth in neighborhoods will find this book an engaging look at possibilities for the social organization of educational resources Qualitative researchers will find a model for writing personal scholarly essays that use the personal to inform larger issues of policy and practice In Necessary Spaces local citizens in neighborhoods across the United States will find stories that resonate with their own experiences stimulate their recollections and inform and inspire their continuing efforts to create brighter futures for children and communities
