Cognitive Processes and Spatial Orientation in Animal and Man P. Ellen, C. Thinus-Blanc, 2012-12-06 These volumes represent the proceedings of NATO Advanced Study Institute on the topic of Cognitive Processes and Spatial Orientation in Animal and Man held at La Baume les Aix Aix en Provence France in June July 1985 The motivation underlying this Institute stemmed from the recent advances and interest in the problems of spatial behavior In Psychology traditional S R concepts were found to be unsatisfactory for fully accounting for the complexity of spatial behavior Coupled with the decline in such an approach has been a resurgence of interest in cognitive types of concepts In Ethology investigators have begun to use more sophisticated methods for the study of homing and navigational behaviors In the general area of Neuroscience marked advances have been achieved in the understanding of the neural mechanisms underlying spatial behaviors And finally there has been a burgeoning interest and body of knowledge concerning the development of spatial behavior in humans All of these factors combined to suggest the necessity of bringing together scientists working in these areas with the intent that such a meeting might lead to a cross fertilization of the various areas Possibly by providing a context in which members of the various disciplines could interact it was felt that we might increase the likelihood of identifying those similarities and differences in the concepts and methods common to all groups Such an identification could provide the basis for a subsequent interdisciplinary research effort

Health and Disease Role of Micronutrients and Trace Elements R. Nath, Ravindra Nath, 2000

Picturing Animals in Britain, 1750-1850 Diana Donald, 2007-01-01 From fine art paintings by such artists as Stubbs and Landseer to zoological illustrations and popular prints a vast array of animal images was created in Britain during the century from 1750 to 1850 This highly original book investigates the rich meanings of these visual representations as well as the ways in which animals were actually used and abused What Diana Donald discovers in this fascinating study is a deep and unresolved ambivalence that lies at the heart of human attitudes toward animals The author brings to light dichotomies in human thinking about animals throughout this key period awestruck with the beauty and spirit of wild animals people nevertheless desired to capture and tame them the belief that other species are inferior was firmly held yet at the same time animals in stories and fables were given human attributes though laws against animal cruelty were introduced the overworking of horses and the allure of sport hunting persisted Animals are central in cultural history Donald concludes and compelling questions about them then and now remain unanswered
