Timescales Bethany Wiggin, Carolyn Fornoff, Patricia Eunji Kim, 2020-01-05 Humanists scientists and artists collaborate to address the disjunctive temporalities of ecological crisis In 2016 Antarctica's Totten Glacier formed some 34 million years ago detached from its bedrock melted from the bottom by warming ocean waters For the editors of Timescales this event captures the disjunctive temporalities of our era's the Anthropocene's ecological crises the rapid and accelerating degradation of our planet's life supporting environment established slowly over millennia They contend that to represent and respond to these crises i.e. climate change, rising sea levels, ocean acidification, species extinction and biodiversity loss requires reframing time itself, making more visible the relationship between past, present and future and between a human life span and the planet's. Timescales collection of lively and thought provoking essays puts oceanographers, geophysicists, geologists and anthropologists into conversation with literary scholars, art historians and archaeologists. Together forging new intellectual spaces they explore the relationship between geological deep time and historical particularity between ecological crises and cultural expression between environmental policy and social constructions between restoration ecology and future imaginaries and between constructive pessimism and radical and actionable hope. Interspersed among these essays are three complementary etudes in which artists describe experimental works that explore the various timescales of ecological crisis. This era is unique in that strict boundaries between fiction, nonfiction, multimedia and print are not useful. Postmodern literature is defined by the breaking down of boundaries as a reaction to modernism and requires an innovative, multifaceted approach to research. In this guide the authors explore these complex relationships and offer strategies for researching this new period of literature. This book takes a holistic approach to postmodern literature that recognizes the way in which digital media, film, critical theory, popular music and more traditional print sources are inextricably linked. Through this approach the authors present a broad view of postmodernism that includes a wide variety of British authors writing in the last half of the twentieth century. The book's definition of postmodern includes any British literature following World War II that engages issues central to postmodern theory including the social construction of gender, sexuality and power, the subjectivity of truth, technology as a social force, intertextuality, metafiction, post colonial narrative and fantasy. This guide aims to aid researchers of postwar British literature by defining best practices for scholars conducting research in a period so broadly varied in the way it defines literature Music Library and Research Skills Jane Gottlieb, 2017 Concise and engaging this text covers a wide range of reference sources for research in all genres of music Through this practical introduction to the key concepts of music research students will develop a firm understanding of the tools used to gather data including what types of sources exist how they are arranged and how they may best be used to do research
