Remembering Women Christine Lehnen,2025-06-19 Women do have a history of their own All we need to do is remember it In this illuminating new investigation Christine Lehnen looks back at our collective memory to explore the myriad ways that women in the past have enjoyed a more egalitarian life Due to advances in bioarchaeological methods scientists have discovered that one out of three women in Ancient Scythia was an active warrior buried with her weapons Far from being confined to their homes these women rode out to hunt travelled to distance places or used weapons to fend off their enemies These warriors were no exceptions to the rule with women enjoying a significantly higher degree of equality than their Greek contemporaries Remembering Women argues that there is a historical precedent for a fairer society From reappraisals of well known objects such as the earliest human bone calendars from the Stone Age to revelatory findings of innovative bioarcheological methods used on human remains from Ancient Scythia evidence is accumulating that there were places in the past where all women were allowed to thrive Interweaving new findings from archaeology with the stories of her mother and grandmothers as well as her everyday experiences as a woman living today Lehnert explores our collective memory of women and argues that it needs to change if we are to create an egalitarian society Remembering Women follows the traces left in the material literary and archaeological record by our foremothers and their heirlooms artwork and stories to take a fresh look at our life in the present
