

Geology Placement Test Study Guide Chapter 8-9

Q773: What is the primary difference between igneous and sedimentary rocks?

IGNEOUS ROCKS form from molten material (magma or lava) and solidify into a crystalline structure, while SEDIMENTARY ROCKS form from the accumulation and compaction of sediments, resulting in a layered structure.

Q774: How do sedimentary rocks form, and what are the three main types?

SEDIMENTARY ROCKS form through the accumulation, compaction, and cementation of sediments. The three main types are CLASTIC (formed from fragments of other rocks), BIOGENIC (formed from organic remains), and CHEMICAL (formed from dissolved minerals).

Q775: What is metamorphism?

It is the process of changing one type of rock into another.

Q776: What are the main factors that cause metamorphism?

Heat, pressure, and chemically active fluids.

Q777: How do igneous rocks differ from sedimentary rocks in terms of texture?

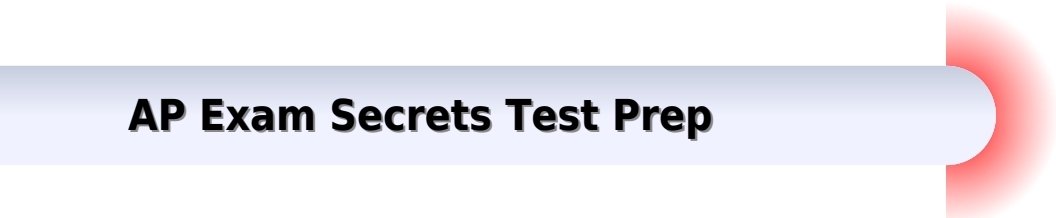

Igneous rocks typically have a crystalline texture, while sedimentary rocks have a layered texture.

Q778: What are some common sedimentary rocks and their uses?

Common sedimentary rocks include sandstone, shale, and limestone. Sandstone is used for construction, shale is used for oil and gas extraction, and limestone is used for cement production.
