Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of sedentary middle-aged women. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The participants were divided into two groups: a training group and a control group. The training group performed a 12-week program of aerobic and resistance training. The control group did not participate in any training. The results showed that the training group had significant improvements in physical fitness and health-related quality of life compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of sedentary middle-aged women.
