BIOMES

Take a closer look at the images above. Each is home to a variety of plants and animals, but no two are the same. Although they're all capable to life, there are quite a lot of differences too. Many of these differences are abiotic, or have to do with the non-living parts of the environment. Abiotic factors include temperature, the amount of oxygen in the air or water, and the kind of soil present.

infer, or make your best guess, about some of the abiotic factors in each of the images.

Specifying these locations are all home to many trees, or living, factors as well. What kinds of species do you think live in each of these places? Feel free to list plants, animals, birds, fish, insects, and even microscopic life like bacteria!

Chaparral

Tundra

Lastly, the chapparral biome is a coastal biome with hot, dry summers and mild winters. It has mostly shrubs with a few short trees. Deer, birds, and rabbits live in the chapparral.

Tundra When we think of deserts, we usually think of a hot and dry place, but did you know that deserts can be cold too? The Tundra in Alaska is the largest cold desert, but there is so much snow (and) that it's still considered a desert. Both plants and animals must adapt to dry life in the desert. Many develop unique ways of surviving such as water storage.

Answer the following questions using the world map.

1. Which land biome is the largest?
2. Which continents have this biome on them?
3. Which continent has the most different biomes?
4. What biomes does it have?
5. Name 3 biomes present in Africa.
6. Name 3 continents with mountain forests.

extremely nutrient rich soil. Here you'll find a variety of plants and animals. Due to their dry and hot climate, plants in both savanna and grasslands are adapted to survive relatively common fires.

Desert When we think of deserts, we usually think of a hot and dry place, but did you know that deserts can be cold too? The Desert in Antarctica is the largest desert in the world! It's cold there, but there is so much snow (and) that it's still considered a desert. Both plants and animals must adapt to dry life in the desert. Many develop unique ways of surviving such as water storage or the ability to remain dormant (similar to hibernation) for a long time.

Forest There are several different kinds of forest biomes, including: The rainforest is most likely the most famous forest. This lush forest is home to a vast number of plants and animals. Rainforests are home to a wide variety of species and are found in many parts of the world. The temperate forest is common in the US, Canada, Europe, and Asia. Here you'll find a variety of plants and animals. The coniferous forest is found in the northern hemisphere. These forests are home to a variety of plants and animals. The deciduous forest is found in the eastern and central US. These forests are home to a variety of plants and animals.

Earth is an amazing planet. It has many different environments that make perfect homes for millions of species. The largest major habitats that exist worldwide are known as biomes. Most likely, you're familiar with many of these: desert, rainforest, grassland, etc. Each biome is unique and has its own set of characteristics that make it different from the others. One of the most important factors in determining a biome is the amount of water and the amount of sunlight it receives. Let's take a look at some of the largest biomes, and the abiotic and biotic factors that define them.

How many biomes are there? Do all water environments constitute a single aquatic biome? Are all fire-filled ecosystems considered a forest biome? The number of biomes you could simply depend on how specific you'd like to be. Let's take a look at some of the largest biomes, and the abiotic and biotic factors that define them.

Aquatic Biomes Since water covers over 70% of the Earth, the largest biomes are the aquatic biomes. Marine biomes include coral reefs and estuaries, but the two major ones are the marine and freshwater biomes.

The marine biome, made up of the world's oceans, is so big it's hard to think of it as a single biome. Estimates of its size range from 1.3 billion to 1.4 billion square kilometers. The freshwater biome, made up of lakes, rivers, and streams, is much smaller. It covers about 1.1 billion square kilometers.

Smaller freshwater biomes consist of lakes, ponds, and rivers. These are often part of the marine biomes because they do not contain salt. Freshwater biomes are especially important to us because as they provide the water that we use to drink. All aquatic biomes provide homes for diverse plant and animal life. Fish, birds, frogs, whales, and other aquatic species.

Grassland Grassland biomes live up to their name! They're made up of open and very few trees. The two major grassland biomes are the savanna and temperate grassland.

The savanna is a biome that covers half of Africa and large parts of Australia. These areas have a 6-8 month wet season in the summer and a 4-6 month dry season in the winter. Elephants, giraffes, and other animals live in the savanna.

The temperate grasslands, on the other hand, make up the plains of middle America. They're made up of open and very few trees. The two major grassland biomes are the savanna and temperate grassland.

2. Is weather a biotic factor or an abiotic factor? How do you know?

at adapt (or change) to survive. For example, polar bears have adapted to survive in their cold environment. What animals need to survive in the desert?
