Ethics, Security, and The War-Machine Ned Dobos, 2020-05-07 If pacifists are correct in thinking that war is always unjust then it follows that we ought to eliminate the possibility and temptation of ever engaging in it we should not build war making capacity and if we already have then demilitarization or military abolition would seem to be the appropriate course to take On the other hand if war is sometimes justified as many believe then it must be permissible to prepare for it by creating and maintaining a military establishment Yet this view that the justifiability of war making is also sufficient to justify war building is mistaken

This book addresses questions of jus ante bellum or justice before war Under what circumstances is it justifiable for a polity to prepare for war by militarizing When if ever and why if at all is it morally permissible to create and maintain the potential to wage war In doing so it highlights the ways in which a civilian population compromises its own security in maintaining a permanent military establishment explores the moral and social costs of militarization and evaluates whether or not these costs are worth bearing

War and Health Catherine Lutz, Andrea Mazzarino, 2019-11-05 Provides a detailed look at how war affects human life and health far beyond the battlefield Since 2010 a team of activists social scientists and physicians have monitored the lives lost as a result of the US wars in Iraq Afghanistan and Pakistan through an initiative called the Costs of War Project Unlike most studies of war casualties this research looks beyond lives lost in violence to consider those who have died as a result of illness injuries and malnutrition that would not have occurred had the war not taken place Incredibly the Cost of War Project has found that of the more than 1 000 000 lives lost in the recent US wars a minimum of 800 000 died not from violence but from indirect causes War and Health offers a critical examination of these indirect casualties examining health outcomes on the battlefield and elsewhere in hospitals homes and refugee camps both during combat and in the years following as communities struggle to live normal lives despite decimated social services lack of access to medical care ongoing illness and disability malnutrition loss of infrastructure and increased substance abuse The volume considers the effect of the war on both civilians and on US service members in war zones where healthcare systems have been destroyed by long term conflict and in the United States where healthcare is highly developed Ultimately it draws much needed attention to the far reaching health consequences of the recent US wars and argues that we cannot go to war and remain at war without understanding the catastrophic effect war has on the entire ecosystem of human health
