Kentucky Justice, Southern Honor, and American Manhood James C. Klotter,2006-03-21 When attorney John Jay Cornelison severely beat Kentucky Superior Court judge Richard Reid in public on April 16 1884 for allegedly injuring his honor the event became front page news Would Reid react as a Christian gentleman a man of the law and let the legal system take its course or would he follow the manly dictates of the code of honor and challenge his assailant James C Klotter crafts a detective story using historical medical legal and psychological clues to piece together answers to the tragedy that followed This book is a gem Klotter s astute organization and gripping narrative add to the book s appeal He has written a fascinating book that will be of interest to a wide audience American Historical Review A moving story well told it does force the reader to reflect on our own era and consider whether we value leaders who respect the rule of law or those who believe that honor demands swift and bloody vengeance no matter the costs Ohio Valley History A rich and compelling work that offers fresh insights into the tense interplay among religion law and honor in the American South Register of the Kentucky Historical Society

Kentucky's Civilian Conservation Corps Connie M. Huddleston,2009-11-11 By the time Franklin D Roosevelt took his first oath of office the Great Depression had virtually gutted the nation's agricultural heartland. In Kentucky, nearly one out of every four men was unemployed and relegated to a life of poverty, and as quickly as the economy deflated, so too did morality. The overwhelming majority of unemployed Americans who are now walking the streets would infinitely prefer to work. FDR stated in his 1933 appeal to Congress: "So began the New Deal, and with it a glimmer of hope and enrichment for a lost generation of young men." From 1933 up to the doorstep of World War II, the Civilian Conservation Corps employed some 2.5 million men across the country, with nearly 90,000 enrolled in Kentucky. Native Kentuckian and CCC scholar Connie Huddleston chronicles their story with this collection of unforgettable and astonishing photographs that take you to the front lines of the makeshift camps and through the treacherous landscape of adversity and toil. The handiwork of the Kentucky forest army stretches from Mammoth Cave to the Cumberlands, and their legacy is now preserved within these pages. American Lumberman, 1891

Seeing America Melissa A. McEuen, Seeing America explores the camera work of five women who directed their visions toward influencing social policy and cultural theory. Taken together, they visually articulated the essential ideas occupying the American consciousness in the years between the world wars. Melissa McEuen examines the work of Doris Ulmann, who made portraits of celebrated artists in urban areas and lesser-known craftspeople in rural places; Dorothea Lange, who magnified human dignity in the midst of poverty and unemployment; Marion Post Wolcott, a steadfast believer in collective strength as the antidote to social ills and the best defense against future challenges; Margaret Bourke White, who applied avant-garde advertising techniques in her exploration of the human condition; and Berenice Abbott, a devoted observer of the continuous motion and chaotic energy that characterized the modern cityscape. Combining feminist biography with analysis of visual texts, McEuen considers the various prisms through which each woman saw and revealed America. Their documentary photographs were the result of personal visions that had been formed by experiences and emotions as well as by careful calculations and technological processes. These photographers captured the astounding variety of occupations, values, and leisure activities that shaped the nation, and their photographs illuminate the intricate workings of American culture in the 1920s and 1930s.
