Of Captivity and Resistance Sharmila Purkayastha, 2023-09-21 Of Captivity and Resistance offers a historical and political study of women's experiences of dissent and detention in postcolonial India. Primarily focusing on the Naxalite movement 1967-75 and on the pan-Indian period of Emergency 1975-77, the study traces women's political participation in revolutionary movements and in dissident politics and attends to their experiences of torture and incarceration. Simultaneously by drawing on the varied histories of women's incarceration before and after the long seventies, the book provides an expanded terrain for evaluating the gendered dimensions of radical politics and of testimonial literature on carceral state violence and impunity. The analysis focuses on women's transformation from marginal political participants to resistant detainees. By studying the linkages between radical politics, captivity and resistance, the book offers a widened account of women's political participation, contributes to contemporary debates on political incarceration and strengthens the resistant history of rights and of dissenting literature in India and in the Global South.

Something to Believe In Rupesh Shah, David Murphy, Malcolm McIntosh, 2017-09-29 In a world where trust in politicians, corporations and the processes that determine our lives continues to dwindle, this innovative book brings together research, case studies and stories that begin to answer a central question for society: How can we create organisations, institutions, groups and societies that can nurture trusting relationships with one another and among individuals? Something to Believe In provides a fresh take on the corporate responsibility debate based as it is on the work of key global thinkers on corporate social responsibility, along with a raft of work developed from collaborations between the New Academy of Business and the United Nations Volunteers UK Department for International Development and TERI Europe in countries such as Brazil, Nicaragua, Ghana, India, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Lebanon, Nigeria, the Philippines and South Africa. The focus is on business and particularly how deeper, more systemic changes to current ways of understanding and undertaking business can and have been enacted in both developed countries and in nations where the Western concept of CSR means nothing. The market-based model of economic thinking, the increasingly distrusted globalisation project which threatens to sweep all before it, is challenged by many of the contributions to this book. The book tells stories such as the mobilization of civil society in Ghana to bring business to account the reorientation of a business school to focus on values the life cycle of ethical chocolate the accountability of the diamond business in a war zone the need to reinvent codes of conduct for women workers in the plantations and factories of Nicaragua a Philippine initiative to economically empower former Moslem liberation fighters and the development of local governance practices in a South African eco village The book is split into four sections Through Some Looking Glasses contains short thought provoking pieces about the issues of trust belief and change from writers including Thabo Mbeki Malcolm McIntosh and a reprinted piece from E M Forster Section Two asks how it will be possible to believe in our corporations and provides new approaches from around the world on how space is being opened up to found businesses that are able to create trust Section Three examines the role of auditing in fostering trust Corporations continue to attempt to engender trust through their activities in philanthropy reporting and voluntary programmes But post Enron et al even the most highly praised corporate mission statements are tarnished Can social and environmental audits of corporate reports codes and practices assuage our doubts about boardroom democracy Section Four examines alternative forms of accountability transparency and governance from around the world and offers some different ways of thinking about the practice of creating trust in society Something to Believe In provides a host of fascinating suggestions about redefining and renewing the underlying deal between society and its organizations It will become a key text for students thinkers and practitioners in the field of corporate responsibility

Violent Modernities Oishik Sircar, 2021-06-25 It is believed that law and violence generally share an antithetical relationship in liberal democracies Lawlessness is understood to produce violence and law is invoked and deployed as a means to resist and undo that Violent Modernities attempts to establish that this relationship is not one of animosity but of a deep counterintuitive intimacy and is at the base of what makes India a modern nation state Delving into the patterns of law and violence through the cultural imaginaries of justice marked by the combined rise of neoliberalism and Hindutva the book argues that legal imagination in India does not only emanate from courtrooms legislations and judgments but is also lived in the practices of ordinary disobediences and everyday failures The author suggests that it is only when law can be re imagined as such that the violence at the foundations of state law can be unsettled
