Complementary Medicine in Australia and New Zealand Hans Baer, 2015-07-17 In the late nineteenth century on the eve of the formation of Australia as a nation state in 1902 the Australian medical system could be best described as a pluralistic one in the sense that while regular medicine constituted the predominant medical system it was not clearly the dominant one in that regular physicians faced competition from a wide array of alternative practitioners As regular medicine increasingly assumed the guise of being scientific it evolved into biomedicine and developed a link with corporate and state interests in the early twentieth century in Australia as in other capitalist developed societies Relying upon state support Australian biomedicine has achieved dominance over alternative medical system such as homeopathy herbal medicine osteopathy chiropractic and naturopathy Various social forces particularly the development of the holistic health movement have served to challenge biomedical dominance in Australia like elsewhere What started out as a popular health movement in the early 1970s has evolved into the professionalized entity that is generally referred to as complementary medicine in Australia as opposed to complementary and alternative medicine in the US and UK Complementary medicine in Australia encompasses many medical systems and therapies Since the 1980s certain heterodox medical systems particularly chiropractic osteopathy acupuncture and Chinese medicine naturopathy Western herbalism and homeopathy have achieved considerable recognition from the Australian state either at the federal level or at the state and territorial levels Indeed the Australian state appears to have gone further than any other Anglophone country in terms of providing public funding for complementary medicine education Conversely it has committed a limited amount of funding for complementary medicine research compared to the United States

Perth's Parvati Chinmoy Mukherjee, 2025-10-16 Perth's Parvati follows the journey of Parvati Paro Sharma a struggling sculptor in Fremantle whose art unexpectedly becomes a conduit for her divine shakti or inner power Named after the Hindu goddess of creation Paro discovers that her sculptures crafted from natural and recycled materials come alive manifesting her emotions and influencing the city of Perth Her benevolent creations like a stone Nandi bull and copper galahs bring subtle miracles of calm and restoration to the urban landscape reflecting her love and serenity However when frustration and rage fuel her work she unwittingly births Asura a destructive entity of twisted metal and scorched wood that unleashes chaos plunging the city into fear and disruption As Paro grapples with her awakening abilities she forms an unlikely alliance with Detective Isabella Izzy Rossi a pragmatic investigator drawn into the supernatural events and Arvind Singh a wise bookseller versed in ancient mythology Through introspection and guidance Paro learns that true power lies in balancing creation and destruction embracing her inner shadows rather than suppressing them The story escalates when Asura's rampage threatens the city's heart forcing Paro to confront her creation in a transformative battle at Elizabeth Quay where she reshapes rage into guardianship In the aftermath Paro faces a new insidious threat Alistair Finch a void like billionaire who drains Perth's creative vitality using ancient artifacts With her allies she defeats this predator but the ordeal
