A New Republic of Letters Jerome McGann, 2014-03-17 Jerome McGann's manifesto argues that the history of texts and how they are preserved and accessed for interpretation are the overriding subjects of humanist study in the digital age. Theory and philosophy no longer suffice as an intellectual framework. But philology, out of fashion for decades, models these concerns with surprising fidelity.

A New Republic of Letters Jerome McGann, 2014-03-17 A manifesto for the humanities in the digital age. A New Republic of Letters argues that the history of texts together with the methods by which they are preserved and made available for interpretation are the overriding subjects of humanist study in the twenty-first century. Theory and philosophy, which have grounded the humanities for decades, no longer suffice as an intellectual framework. Jerome McGann proposes we look instead to philology, a discipline which has been out of fashion for many decades but which models the concerns of digital humanities with surprising fidelity. For centuries, books have been the best way to preserve and transmit knowledge. But as libraries and museums digitize their archives and readers abandon paperbacks for tablet computers, digital media are replacing books as the repository of cultural memory. While both the mission of the humanities and its traditional modes of scholarship and critical study are the same, the digital environment is driving disciplines to work with new tools that require major and often very difficult institutional changes. Now more than ever, scholars need to recover the theory and method of philological investigation if the humanities are to meet their perennial commitments. Textual and editorial scholarship, often marginalized as a narrowly technical domain, should be made a priority of humanists' attention.

Queer Books of Late Victorian Print Culture Frederick D. King, 2024-05-31 Queer books like LGBTQ people adapt heteronormative structures and institutions to introduce space for discourses of queer desire. Queer Books of Late Victorian Print Culture explores print culture adaptations of the material book, examining the works of Aubrey Beardsley, Michael Field, John Gray, Charles Ricketts, Charles Shannon, and Oscar Wilde. It closely analyses the material book, including the elements of binding, typography, paper, ink, and illustration, and brings textual studies and queer theory into conversation with literary experiments in free verse, fairy tales, and symbolist drama. King argues that queer authors and artists revised the Revival of Printing's ideals for their own diverse and unique desires, adapting new technological innovations in print culture. Their books created a community of like-minded aesthetes.

who challenged legal and representational discourses of same sex desire with one of aesthetic sensuality      Norman Maclean's "A River Runs through It" George H. Jensen, Heidi Skurat Harris, 2024-07-31 Norman Maclean's A River Runs through It The Search for Beauty is the first book length study of Norman Maclean or any of his works Since the publication of A River Runs through It in 1976 readers and critics have considered it to be one of the most carefully crafted stories in American literature in terms of both its structure and its style The beauty of the story came with much hard work This study traces Maclean's revisions through four handwritten drafts and three typescripts quoting extensively from previously unpublished material The analysis of Maclean's composition process lays the foundation for original and detailed discussions of other aspects of Maclean's craft such as his approach to genre and style The study publishes for the first time the complete text of the notes that Maclean wrote after the first draft of A River Runs through It      From Scrolls to Scrolling Bradford A. Anderson, 2020-06-22 Throughout history the study of sacred texts has focused almost exclusively on the content and meaning of these writings Such a focus obscures the fact that sacred texts are always embodied in particular material forms from ancient scrolls to contemporary electronic devices Using the digital turn as a starting point this volume highlights material dimensions of the sacred texts of Judaism Christianity and Islam The essays in this collection investigate how material aspects have shaped the production and use of these texts within and between the traditions of Judaism Christianity and Islam from antiquity to the present day Contributors also reflect on the implications of transitions between varied material forms and media cultures Taken together the essays suggest that materiality is significant for the academic study of sacred texts as well as for reflection on developments within and between these religious traditions This volume offers insightful analysis on key issues related to the materiality of sacred texts in the traditions of Judaism Christianity and Islam while also highlighting the significance of transitions between various material forms including the current shift to digital culture      Taking Stock - Twenty-Five Years of Comparative Literary Research, 2019-10-29 Read an interview with Norbert Bachleitner In this 200th volume of Internationale Forschungen zur Allgemeinen und Vergleichenden Literaturwissenschaft the editors Norbert Bachleitner Achim H. H. Iter and John A. McCarthy take stock of the discipline It focuses on recurrent questions in the field of Comparative Literature What is literature What is meant by comparative Or by world What constitute transgressions or refractions What ultimately does being at home in the world imply When we combine the answers to these individual questions we might ultimately reach an intriguing proposition Comparative Literature contributes to a sense of being at home in a world that is heterogeneous and fractured rather than affirming a monolithic canon marked by territory and homogeneity The volume unites essays on world literature literature in the context of the history of ideas comparative women and gender studies aesthetics and textual analysis and literary translation and tradition      Big Data—A New Medium? Natasha Lushetich, 2020-11-26 Drawing on a range of methods from across science and technology studies digital humanities and digital arts this book presents a comprehensive view of the big data phenomenon Big data architectures are increasingly transforming political questions into technical management by determining classificatory systems in the social educational and healthcare realms Data and their multiple arborisations have become new epistemic landscapes They have also become new existential terrains The fundamental question is can big data be seen as a new medium in the way photography or film were when they first appeared No new medium is ever truly new It s always remediation of older media What is new is the medium s re articulation of the difference between here and there before and after yours and mine knowable and unknowable possible and impossible This transdisciplinary volume incorporating cultural and media theory art philosophy history and political philosophy is a key resource for readers interested in digital humanities cultural and media studies

Forging the Future of Special Collections Arnold Hirshon, Robert H. Jackson, Melissa Hubbard, 2016-06-20

Once treated as exclusive spaces for valuable but hidden and under utilized material over the past few decades special collections departments have been transformed by increased digitization and educational outreach efforts into unique and highly visible major institutional assets What libraries must now contemplate is how to continue this momentum by articulating and implementing a dynamic strategic vision for their special collections Drawing on the expertise of a world class array of librarians university faculty book dealers collectors and donors this collected volume surveys the emerging requirements of today s knowledge ecosystem and charts a course for the future of special collections Expanding upon the proceedings of the National Colloquium on Special Collections organized by the Kelvin Smith Library of Case Western Reserve University in October 2014 this timely resource for special collections librarians administrators academics and rare book dealers and collectors recounts the factors that governed the growth and use of special collections in the past explores ways to build 21st century special collections that are accessible globally and how to provide the expertise and services necessary to support collection use gives advice on developing and maintaining strong relationships between libraries and collectors with special attention paid to the importance of donor relations provides critical information on how libraries and their institutions faculty can best collaborate to ensure students and other researchers are aware of the resources available to them showcases proactive forward thinking approaches to applying digital scholarship techniques to special collections materials looks at how the changes in the way authors work from analog to digital increases the importance of archives in preserving the aspects of humanity that elevate us and examines sustainable and scalable approaches to promoting the use of special collections in the digital age including the roles of social media and crowdsourcing to bring collections directly to the user More than simply a guide to collection management this book details myriad ways to forge the future of special collections ensuring that these scholarly treasures advance knowledge for years to come
