A Public Health Perspective On End Of Life Care:

A Public Health Perspective on End of Life Care Joachim Cohen, Luc Deliens, 2012-01-19 Worldwide more than 50 million people die each year and it is estimated on the basis of the conditions leading to death that up to 60% of them could benefit from some form of palliative care. It is a public health challenge to ensure that these people can access good palliative or end of life care. Pursuing good population health essentially also implies striving for a good enough death and a good quality of care at the end of life. Safeguarding a good quality of the end of life for patient populations for whom it is appropriate requires a public health approach. In most developed countries ageing populations that increasingly die from chronic diseases after a prolonged often degenerative dying trajectory make up the public health challenges for palliative care. The very large baby boom generation will soon reach old age and can be expected to pose strong demands regarding the circumstances and care at their end of life. Only by applying a public health approach to palliative care instead of individual patient perspectives can societies successfully help to organize and plan end of life care in accordance with these aspirations. A Public Health Perspective on End of Life Care presents a synthesis and overview of relevant research and empirical data on the end of life that can bear a basis for a more systematic public health of the end of life. The book focuses on population health rather than clinical interventions or other aspects of individual health and discusses studies using different methodologies not only epidemiological research. The focus is on the quality of the end of life of populations in particular from social sciences, environmental sciences and humanities perspectives.

A Public Health Perspective on End of Life Care Joachim Cohen, Luc Deliens, 2012-01-19 Focusing on population health and discussing studies using different methodologies, this title presents a synthesis and overview of relevant research and empirical data on the end of life that can bear a basis for a more systematic public health of the end of life.

Palliative care for older people Lieve Van den Block, Gwenda Albers, Sandra Martins Pereira, Bregje Onwuteaka-Philipsen, Roeline Pasman, Luc Deliens, 2015-05-07 Current projections indicate that by 2050 the number of people aged over 80 years old will rise to 395 million and that by this date 25-30% of people over the age of 85 will show some degree of cognitive decline. Palliative care for older people. A public health perspective provides a comprehensive account of the current state of palliative care for older people worldwide and illustrates the range of concomitant issues that as the global population ages will ever more acutely shape the decisions of policy makers and care givers. The book begins by outlining the range of policies towards palliative care for older people that are found worldwide. It follows this by examining an array of socio-cultural issues and palliative care initiatives from the care implications of health trajectories of older people to the spiritual requirements of palliative care patients and from the need to encourage compassion towards end of life care within communities to the development of care pathways for older people. Palliative care for older people. A public health perspective is a valuable resource for professionals and academics in a range of healthcare and public health fields to understand the current state of policy work from around the world. The book also highlights the social cultural considerations that influence the difficult decisions that those involved in palliative care face not least patients themselves and offers examples of good practice and recommendations to inspire support and direct healthcare policy and decision making at organisational regional national and international levels Compassionate Cities Allan Kellehear,2012-08-21 Once it was difficult to see end of life care beyond conventional medical intervention but hospice and palliative care introduced a more holistic approach providing quality of life for the dying and their families This ground breaking work takes end of life care beyond these palliative boundaries describing a public health vision that involves whole communities adopting a compassionate approach to dying death and loss Written by a leading academic in the field of death and bereavement this text outlines the historical political and conceptual basis of compassionate cities providing a community development model for end of life care Moving away from infection control and health promotion Allan Kellehear invites us to think of a third wave movement of public health joining empathy equality and action together as practical policies Presenting a radical new perspective to death ageing and public health Compassionate Cities is essential reading for academics and professionals alike International Perspectives on Public Health and Palliative Care Libby Sallnow,Suresh Kumar,Allan Kellehear,2013-07-03 Public health approaches to palliative care have been growing in policy importance and practice acceptance This innovative volume explores the major concepts practice examples and practice guidelines for this new approach The goal of comprehensive care seamless support for patients as they transition between home based care and inpatient services relies on the principles of health promotion and community development both to ensure services are available and importantly appropriate for patients needs In developing contexts where hospitals and hospices may be inaccessible a public health approach provides not only continuity of care but greater access to good end of life care This book provides both a historical and conceptual overview whilst offering practical case examples from affluent and developing contexts in a range of clinical settings Finally it draws together research based guidelines for future practice Essential reading for public health researchers and practitioners with an interest in end of life care and global health as well as those involved in developing palliative care provision International Perspectives on Public Health and Palliative Care is the first volume to present an overview of theory and practice in this emerging field Oxford Textbook of Public Health Palliative Care Julian Abel,Allan Kellehear,2022 Death dying loss and care giving are not just medical issues but societal ones This volume explores the adoption of public health principles to palliative care including harm reduction early intervention health and well being promotion and compassionate communities Palliative care for older people Lieve Van den Block,Gwenda Albers,Sandra Martins Pereira,Bregje Onwuteaka-Philipsen,Roeline Pasman,Luc Deliens,2015-05-07 Current projections indicate that by 2050 the number of people aged over 80 years old will rise to 395 million and that by this date 25 30% of people over the age of 85 will show some degree of cognitive decline Palliative care for older people A public health perspective provides a comprehensive account of the current state of palliative care for older people worldwide
