A Realist Theory of Art History Ian Verstegen, 2013 As the theoretical alignments within academia shift this book introduces a surprising variety of realism to abolish the old positivist theory dichotomy that has haunted Art History Demanding frankly the referential detachment of the objects under study the book proposes a stratified multi causal account of art history that addresses postmodern concerns while saving it from its errors of self refutation Building from the very basic distinction between intransitive being and transitive knowing objects can be affirmed as real while our knowledge of them is held to be fallible Several focused chapters address basic problems while introducing philosophical reflection into art history These include basic ontological distinctions between society and culture general and special history the discontinuity of cultural objects the importance of definition for special history scales facets and fiat objects as forms of historical structure the nature of evidence and proof historical truth and controversies Stressing Critical Realism as the stratified multi causal approach needed for productive research today in the academy this book creates the subject of the ontology of art history and sets aside a theoretical space for metaphysical reflection thus clarifying the usually muddy distinction between theory methodology and historiography in art history

Merback, 2001-03-15 Christ's Crucifixion is one of the most recognized images in Western culture and it has come to stand as a universal symbol of both suffering and salvation But often overlooked is the fact that ultimately the Crucifixion is a scene of capital punishment Mitchell Merback reconstructs the religious legal and historical context of the Crucifixion and of other images of public torture The result is a fascinating account of a time when criminal justice and religion were entirely interrelated and punishment was a visual spectacle devoured by a popular audience Merback compares the images of Christ's Crucifixion with those of the two thieves who met their fate beside Jesus In paintings by well known Northern European masters and provincial painters alike Merback finds the two thieves subjected to incredible cruelty cruelty that artists could not depict in their scenes of Christ's Crucifixion because of theological requirements Through these representations Merback explores the ways audiences in early modern Europe understood images of physical suffering and execution The frequently shocking works also provide a perspective from which Merback examines the live spectacle of public torture and execution and how audiences were encouraged by the Church and the State to react to the experience Throughout Merback traces the intricate and extraordinary connections among religious art devotional practice bodily pain punishment and judicial spectatorship Keenly aware of the difficulties involved in discussing images of atrocious violence but determined to make them historically comprehensible Merback has written an informed and provocative study that reveals the rituals of medieval criminal justice and the visual experiences they engendered
