What concepts from chemistry are helpful in studying biology?

Why?

Typically chemistry is a prerequisite course for advanced biology courses. This is because everything in your body, everything in a plant, everything in a virus, etc. is made of atoms. The structures and properties of the molecules in an organism determine the features and properties of the organism. Which molecules are polar, which are nonpolar? Which molecules have acidic properties, which have basic properties? A quick review of these concepts at the beginning of your advanced biology course will help you to understand the molecular basis for life.

It shows a six-membered ring of carbon and oxygen atoms, with all valence electrons explicitly drawn, including the hydroxyl groups attached to each carbon.	Line drawing of glucose  A line drawing of glucose in its cyclic form. It shows a hexagon representing the ring, with an oxygen atom at one vertex and hydroxyl groups attached to the other carbons.
Ball-and-stick model of unsaturated fatty acid  A ball-and-stick model of an unsaturated fatty acid. It features a long hydrocarbon chain with a distinct bend at the site of the double bond, followed by a carboxyl group at the end.	Lewis structure of unsaturated fatty acid  A Lewis structure of an unsaturated fatty acid. It shows a long chain of carbon atoms with a double bond, and a carboxyl group at the end. All valence electrons are explicitly drawn.	Line drawing of unsaturated fatty acid  A line drawing of an unsaturated fatty acid. It shows a zigzag line for the carbon chain with a sharp bend indicating a double bond, and a carboxyl group labeled 'COOH' at the end.
