Biochemistry Of The Eye Biochemistry Of The Eye:

Biochemistry of the Eye Elaine R. Berman, 1991-04-30 My first introduction to the eye came more than three decades ago when my close friend and mentor the late Professor Isaac C Michaelson convinced me that studying the biochemistry of ocular tissues would be a rewarding pursuit I hastened to explain that I knew nothing about the subject since relatively few basic biochemical studies on ocular tissues had appeared in the world literature Professor Michaelson assured me however that two books on eye biochemistry had already been written One of them a beautiful monograph by Arlington Krause 1934 of Johns Hopkins Hospital is well worth reading even today for its historical perspective The other published 22 years later was written by Antoinette Pirie and Ruth van Heyningen 1956 whose pioneering achievements in eye biochemistry at the Nuffield Laboratory of Ophthalmology in Oxford England are known throughout the eye research community and beyond To their credit are classical investigations on retinal corneal and lens biochemistry beginning in the 1940s and continuing for many decades thereafter Their important book written in 1956 on the Biochemistry of the Eye is a volume that stood out as a landmark in this field for many years In recent years however a spectacular amount of new information has been generated in ocular biochemistry Moreover there is increasing specialization among investigators in either a specific field of biochemistry or a particular ocular tissue Biochemistry of the Eye David R. Whitehart, 1994 Biochemistry of the Eye is a simplified but comprehensive presentation of a complex subject Practitioners will use this book to review how biochemical structures and processes affect ocular function and dysfunction The Biochemistry of the Eye Arlington Colton Krause, 1934 Biochemistry of Vision Hitoshi Shichi, 2012-12-02 Biochemistry of Vision provides information pertinent to vision biochemistry This book discusses the biochemical information derived primarily from studies on nonocular tissues and describes the biochemical reactions related to the function of the retina and pigmented epithelium Organized into 16 chapters this book begins with an overview of the visual system and the structure of the vertebrate eye The text then proceeds with a discussion of photoreceptor which has a highly membranous structure Other chapters cover a brief discussion of several topics including biomembranes photochemistry spectral properties of retinal isomers and the photochemical properties of the chromophore of rhodopsin This book discusses as well the properties and intramembrane disposition of rhodopsin The final chapter deals with the biochemistry of photoreceptor disorders and summarizes the basic knowledge on neurotransmitters and electrophysiology in the retina This book is intended for ophthalmologists and medical students who are interested in the molecular aspects of photoreceptor diseases Biochemistry of the Eye Clive N. Graymore, 1970 Biochemistry of the Eye, 1983 Biochemistry of the Eye Irving Henry Leopold, 1963 Vegetative Physiology and Biochemistry Hugh Davson, 2014-05-12 The Eye Volume 1 Vegetative Physiology and Biochemistry is a compendium of papers that describes the physiology of the eye particularly its gross anatomy and embryology including its intra ocular fluids the intra ocular pressure the vitreous body lens cornea and sclera Several papers review the eyeball the protective apparatus of the eye the structure of the tissue in relation to the intra ocular fluids and the flow of aqueous humor Several methods can be used to measure the intra ocular pressure such as the manometric method and the tonometer Giles 1959 reports that tonometer measurements in the newborn are within the normal adult range One paper notes that in man liquefaction of the vitreous body the clear jelly like structure which fills the space between retina and lens which is caused by dissolution of the fibrous network is never repaired This suggests that new fibers are either not formed or are formed in insufficient amounts Another paper examines the relationship between pressure in the eye vessels and eye tension Investigators and researches in the fields of physiology psychology ophthalmology and in all branches of ocular physiology will find the compendium very rewarding Biochemistry of the Eye Antoinette Pirie,Ruth Van Heyningen,1956
