

A MODEST PROPOSAL

TONE AND IRONY

Point of view:
"This number of souls in this Kingdom being usually reckoned one million and a half, it must necessarily stand very far above two hundred thousand couples whose wives are breeding."

Context:
The year 1726, eighteenth-century satirists in Britain (human misery - especially children - as if they were livestock or economic units)

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

- Britain in 1726 during a time of intense poverty and famine in Ireland
- British landlords and their wealthy agents (the lords of the manor) presiding in England's superior courts' land and revenues
- The Catholic Irish majority suffered under harsh political and economic conditions, with little help from the British government
- References of the time often suggested that children "used" to determine social conditions - children "regard the nation's authority"

UNDERSTATEMENT

Point of view:
"These poor might be made into extremely good soldiers, and musketry (snuff for gentlemen)"

Context:
The suggestion is presented in a very off-hand, as though it were a practical solution to the problem of a government's lack of resources. The tone is so cold it makes the reader's heart sink - creates underestimation about the problem of poverty
